BOM's counterattack subscribers—the future victors of the Great Wealth Wave:

Welcome back to my program! On this Wednesday, words can hardly capture my excitement, because we stand at a historic turning point. I can feel it, the air in the market is charged with unprecedented anticipation and energy.

Before the U.S. market opened on Wednesday morning, we received explosive news: the PPI data came in far below expectations!

What is PPI? It is like the factory's "purchase price." When a factory's input costs fall, it signals that the prices consumers will eventually pay—the "output price"—are also likely to decline.

When this data drops sharply below expectations, it is like a fresh breeze blowing away the heavy "inflation pressure" that has been weighing on us. That pressure has been like a brake pedal, pressed down so hard the economy could not move forward. And now, that brake is beginning to ease!

This "cooling wind" immediately triggered market jubilation.

Everyone is speculating, asking the same question: Will the Fed's September rate cut be 50 bp?

This is no longer just about 25 bp, folks! A 50 bp cut is a massive signal, it means the Fed is deeply confident in its control of inflation and is ready to inject the market with an even stronger shot of adrenaline!

Even more exciting is that deeper political forces are driving this shift. We all know that Donald Trump's influence over Fed decisions is steadily growing. He is actively pushing his preferred candidates into the Fed, and these individuals may soon command a majority of the seats.

I must tell you, a "dark horse" is emerging: Waller is very likely to become the next Chair of the Federal Reserve! He is a staunch supporter of Trump's pro – rate-cut cabinet.

This is like watching a power game unfold, and we, as observers, can clearly see who is poised to be the ultimate winner. When a "hawkish" Fed is about to be replaced by a "dovish" Fed, that in itself is an enormous and immeasurable piece of good news.

Why does today's PPI data coming in below expectations create stronger anticipation for better inflation control in tomorrow's CPI release?

It is like a relay race. PPI is the first baton, it is the leading indicator of inflation. When PPI comes in weak, it signals that the next runner, CPI (to be released tomorrow), will also likely show lower growth.

I have a friend named John, a top chef. He once told me that he always manages to find the freshest and cheapest ingredients in the market. When he sees his purchase prices falling, he knows he can offer his customers better deals while still protecting his profit margins. So he immediately adjusts the prices on his menu.

That is exactly the relationship between PPI and CPI. When producers' costs decline, the effect is passed on to consumers, and ultimately shows up in CPI data. So when today's PPI data surprises to the downside, it is a powerful, undeniable signal: tomorrow's CPI will look even better, and inflation control will be stronger than we imagined!

Today, what brings us together is not merely a set of market data—it is the great wave of wealth surging before our eyes.

Wednesday's pre-market PPI data came in far below expectations.

What does that mean? It is like a sudden cooling rain in the heat of summer, taming the wild beast of inflation.

Once a 50 bp rate cut exceeds expectations, capital in the market will surge forward like water bursting from a dam. Just imagine, that is exactly the period of heightened activity we most want.

This is the beauty of currency surfing.

If your funds were already prepared on Wednesday, then congratulations—you are several steps ahead of the cautious onlookers. Because once the market takes off, you will already be riding the wave while they are still hesitating on the shore.

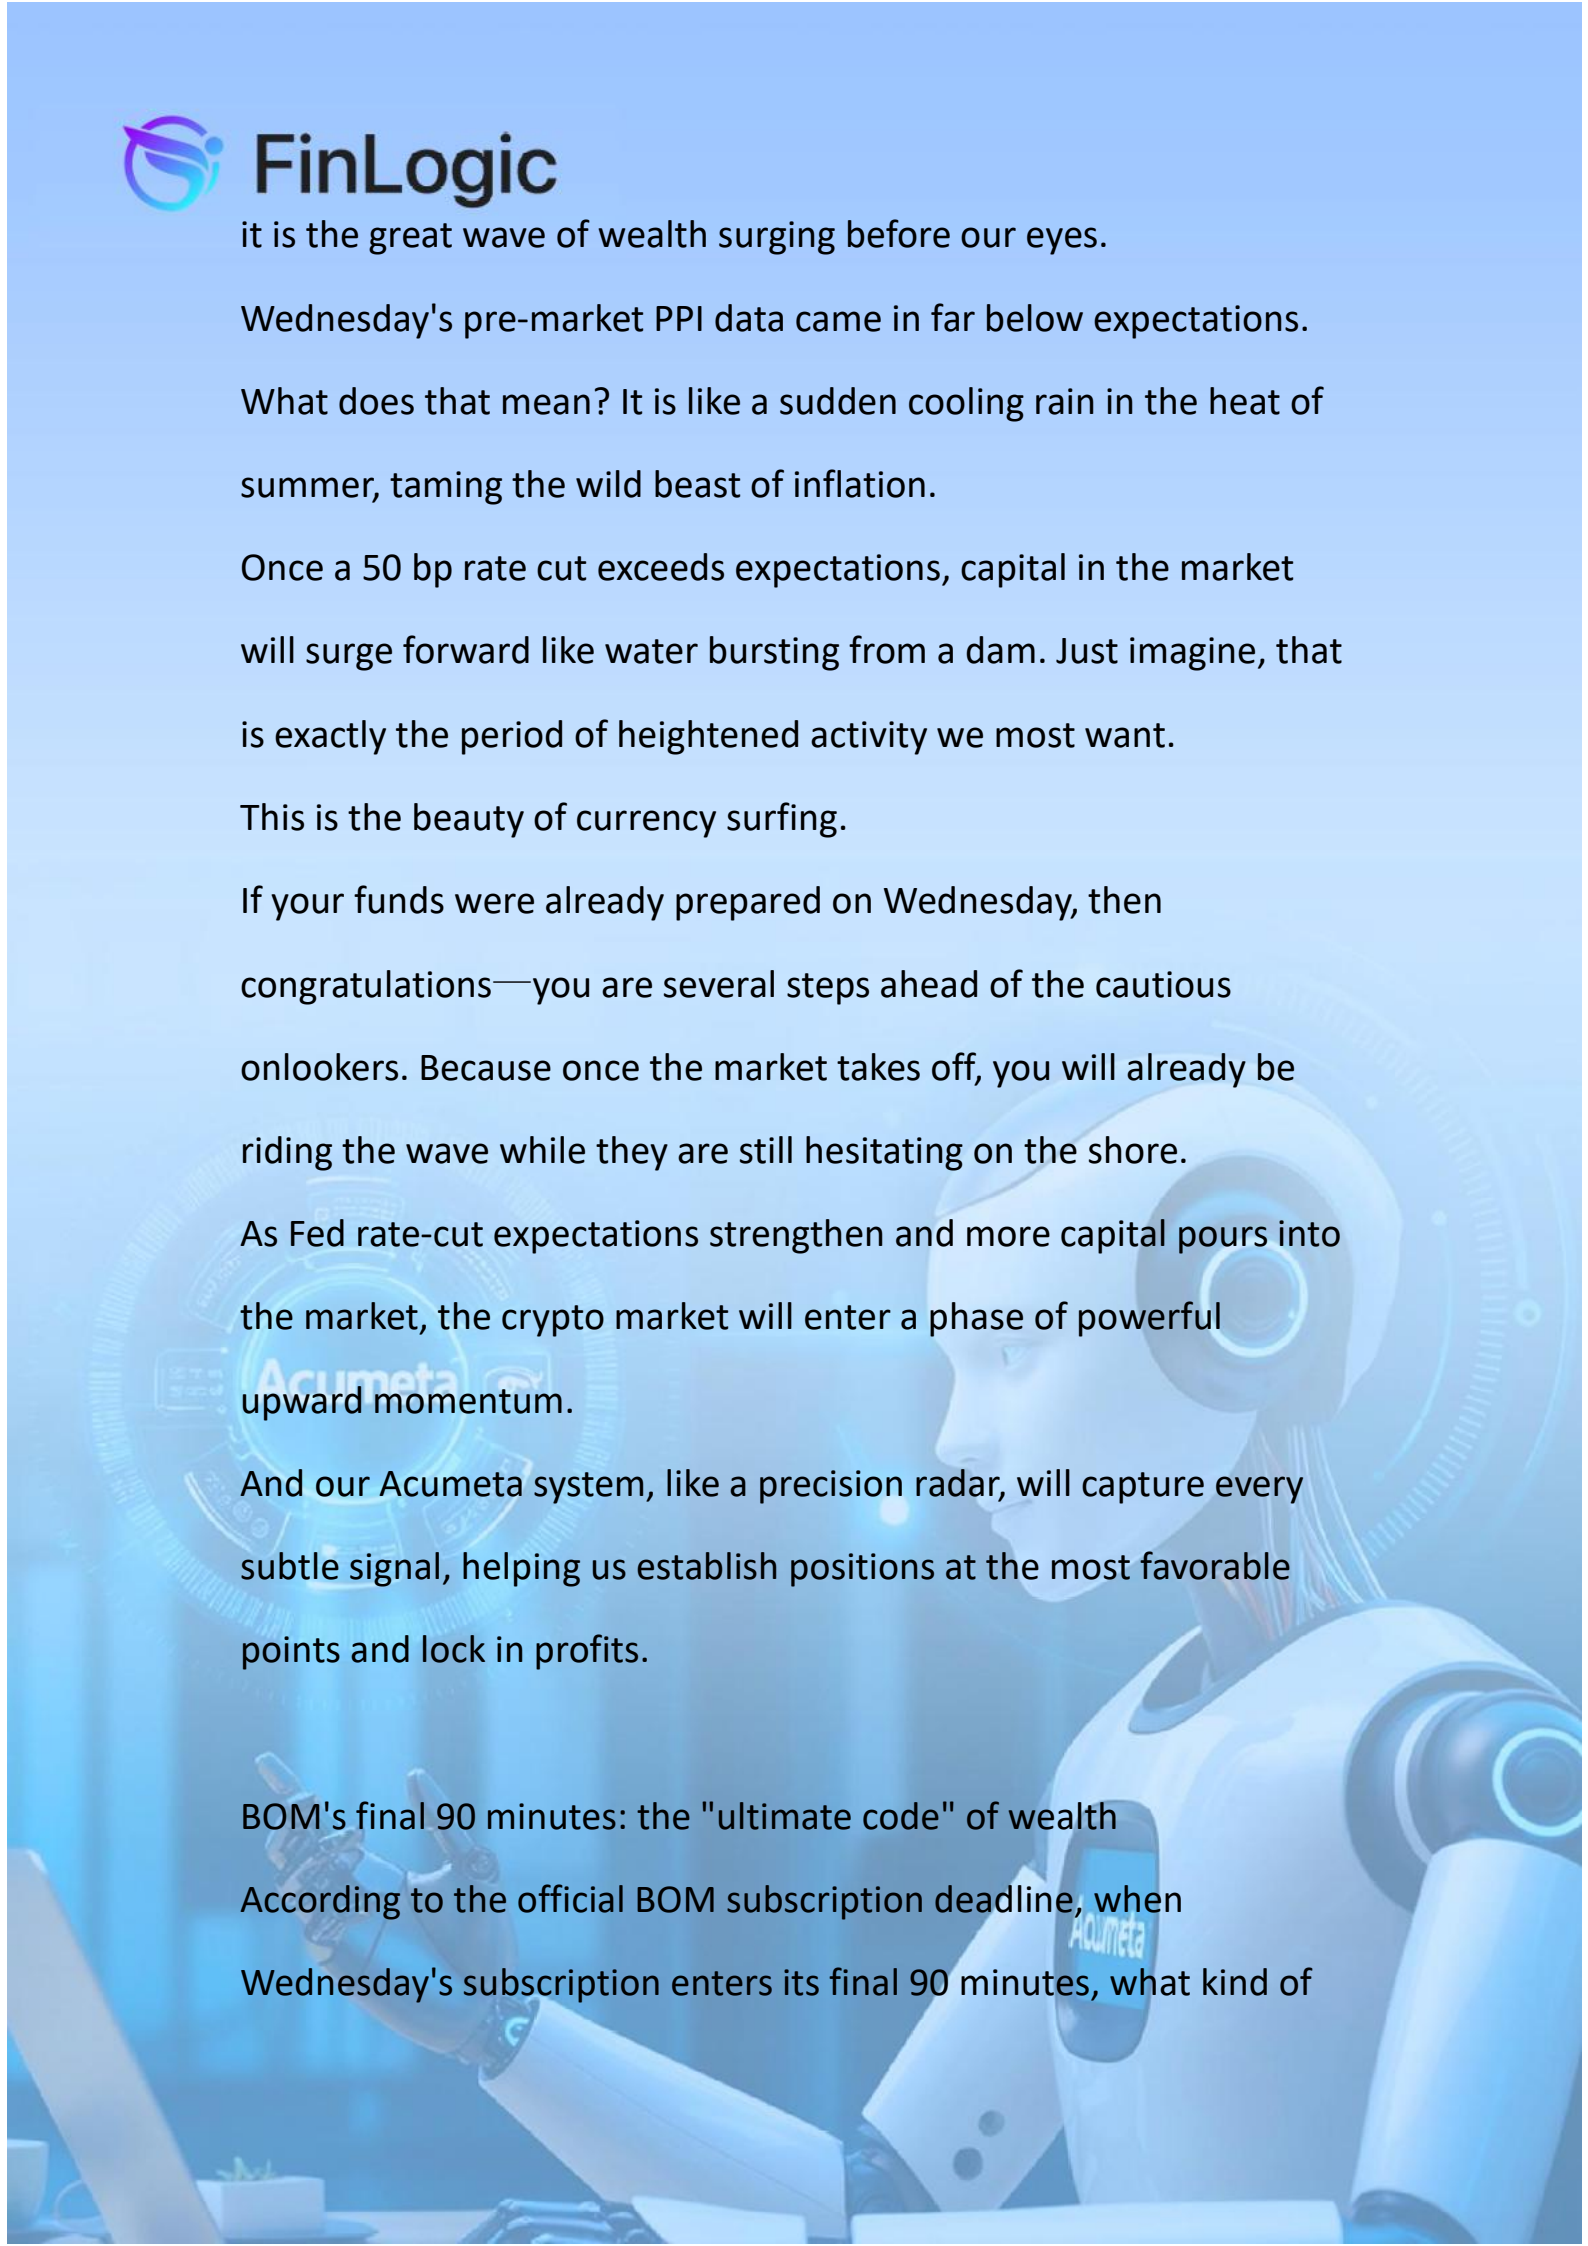

As Fed rate-cut expectations strengthen and more capital pours into the market, the crypto market will enter a phase of powerful upward momentum.

And our Acumeta system, like a precision radar, will capture every subtle signal, helping us establish positions at the most favorable points and lock in profits.

BOM's final 90 minutes: the "ultimate code" of wealth

According to the official BOM subscription deadline, when

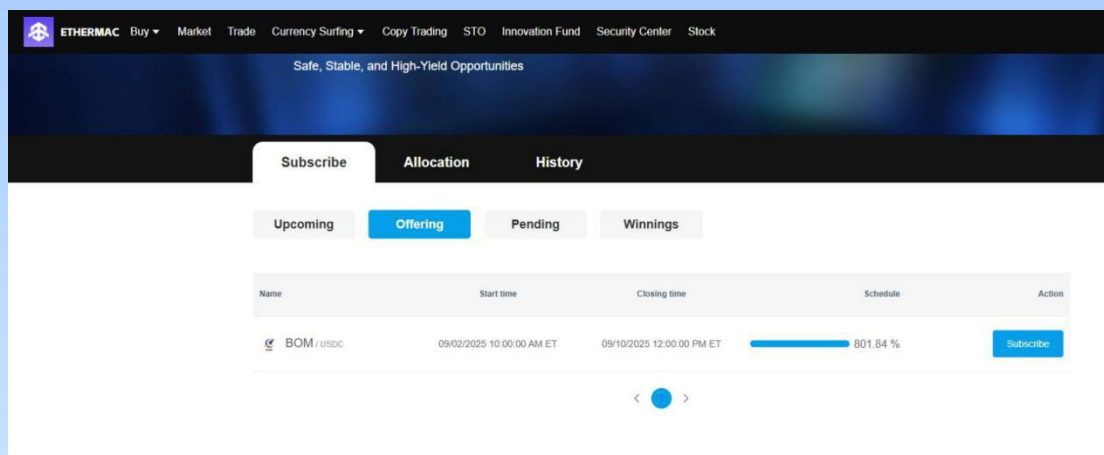

Wednesday's subscription enters its final 90 minutes, what kind of miracle will we witness? What sort of "wealth code" will this closing window reveal?

This code is not hidden in complex formulas, nor buried in obscure theories. It lies in our actions, in our courage, in our decisiveness! When BOM's subscription data shoots upward like a rocket 800% and still climbing, what should you think? Doesn't it send a shiver through you, the feeling that you are watching a miracle unfold in real time?

My God, isn't this the very lightning bolt of wealth? When a project attracts such extraordinary inflows at such breathtaking speed, its value and its future have already won the market's highest recognition!

The subscription window for BOM's new token is in countdown mode.

The data is clear: subscription rates are rocketing upward—750%, 800%, and still climbing.

And these are not just cold numbers, they are a signal of the market voting with its feet.

Trust that people are flocking here not because they are blind, but because they see the goldmine of the future.

Wednesday's PPI is not just a data point, it is a flare signaling our action.

Rate-cut expectations are not merely policy speculation, they are accelerators of the wealth wave.

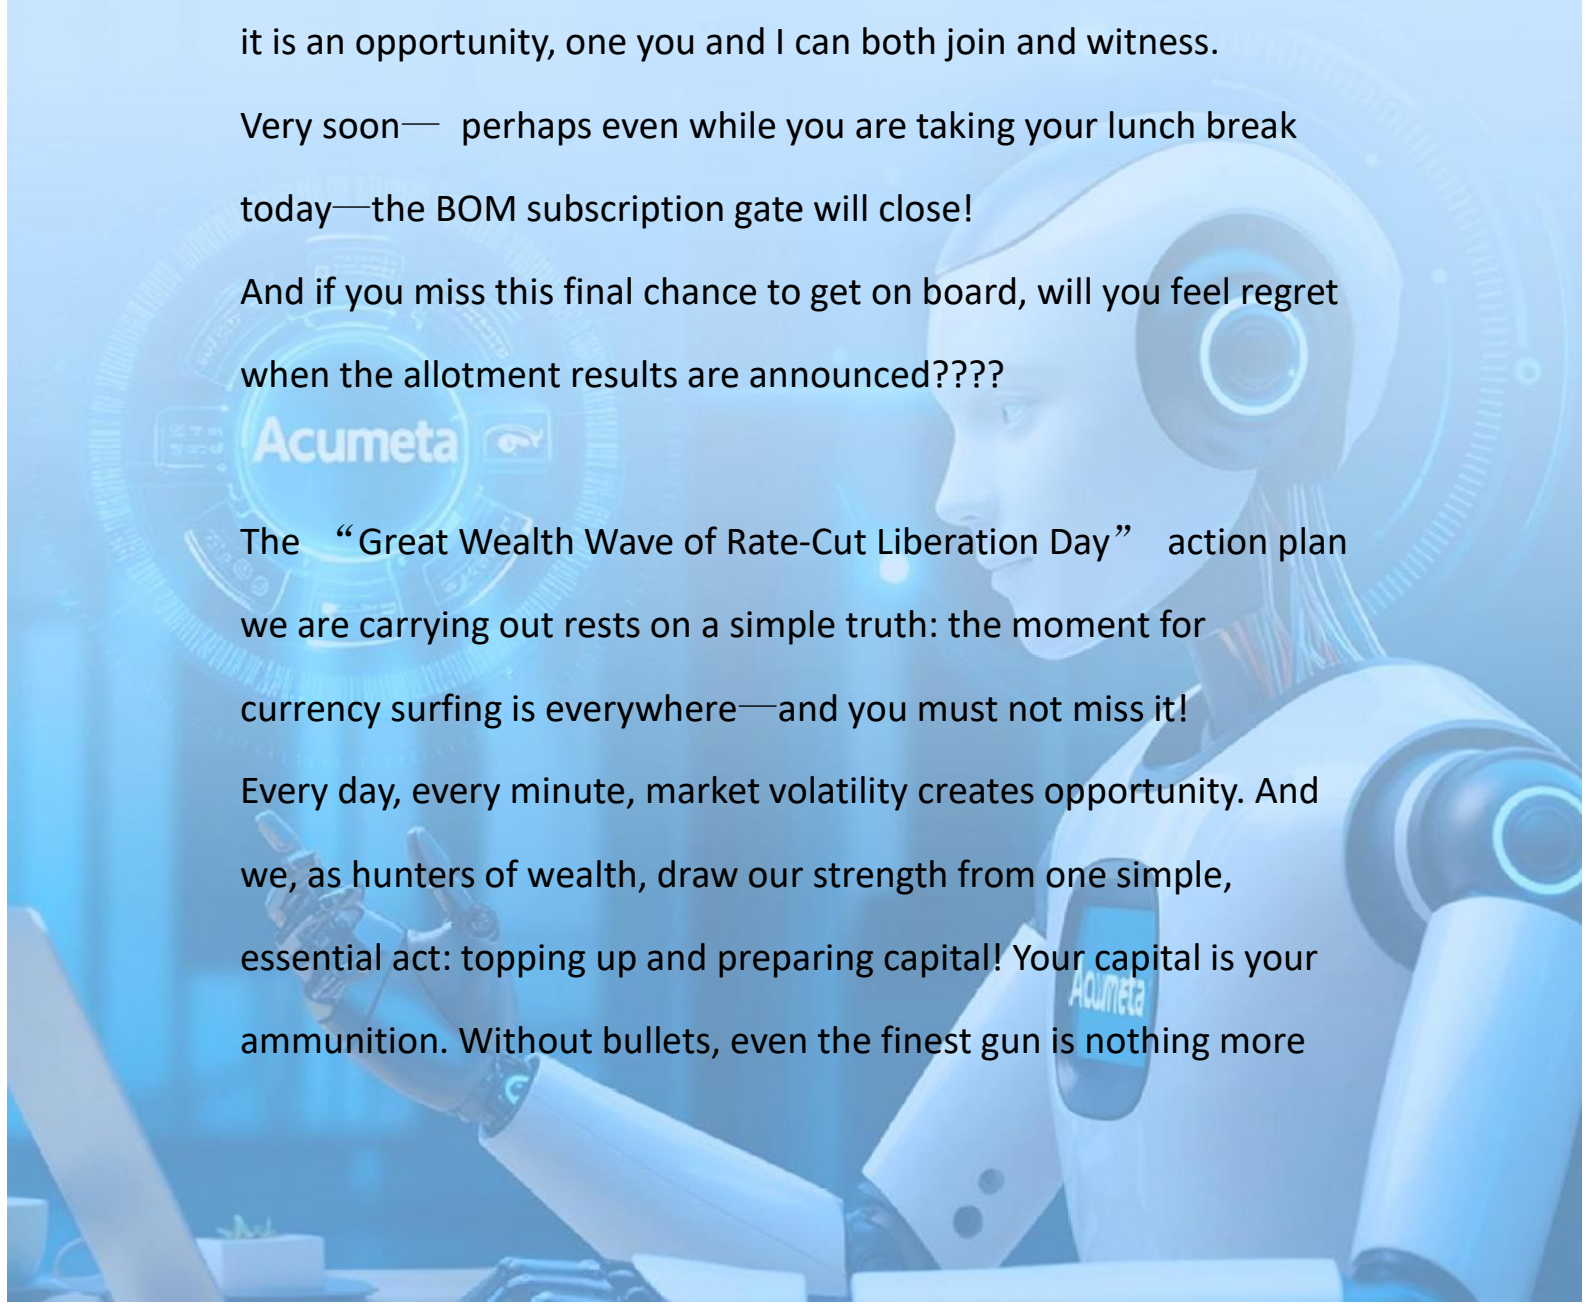

And BOM's subscription window is not just another platform event, it is an opportunity, one you and I can both join and witness.

Very soon— perhaps even while you are taking your lunch break today—the BOM subscription gate will close!

And if you miss this final chance to get on board, will you feel regret when the allotment results are announced????

The “Great Wealth Wave of Rate-Cut Liberation Day” action plan we are carrying out rests on a simple truth: the moment for currency surfing is everywhere—and you must not miss it!

Every day, every minute, market volatility creates opportunity. And we, as hunters of wealth, draw our strength from one simple, essential act: topping up and preparing capital! Your capital is your ammunition. Without bullets, even the finest gun is nothing more than a showpiece.

We now stand at a historic moment. The gates of the BOM subscription are about to close, and I hope each of you will witness the subscription data right up to the very last second! Because that final number is not just a figure, it is a powerful, undeniable conclusion, a wealth code that will guide us into the future! The data chart already shows figures above 800%, with the potential to climb even higher. This surge is not held up by a handful of people, but by the flood of capital rushing in by the tens of thousands.

It is like 5 a.m. on Black Friday, when Walmart's doors swing open and the crowd storms in like a tidal wave. Do you think that is by chance? No. It is collective emotion; it is the clearest picture of market frenzy.

Go and witness the BOM subscription data chart down to the very last second, it offers us the certainty of subscription wisdom:

First, on the question of the severity of passive dilution. Why?

Because the frenzy of rushing to buy is itself the clearest proof of dilution. Today's rush for BOM is the best advertisement there could be. Passive dilution is simply the cost of a project's overwhelming popularity. In other words, if you can be diluted, it proves that what you hold is truly desirable.

Second, on the guidance for BOM's first-day listing price.

Today's rush for BOM has already written its first-day price right in front of you: an 818% final subscription data chart!

Based on our historical experience with new-issue subscriptions, BOM's first-day listing price is projected as:

$$1 \times 8.18 = 8.18 \text{ USDC.}$$

I cannot say with certainty that it will be exact, but at the very least, it will be around this figure. In other words, even if it is 8 USDC, wouldn't you be satisfied with that kind of subscription profit?

Remember, once you secure an allotted winning share, and your cost is only 1 USDC, so, do you realize, then, how much profit each BOM represents for you?

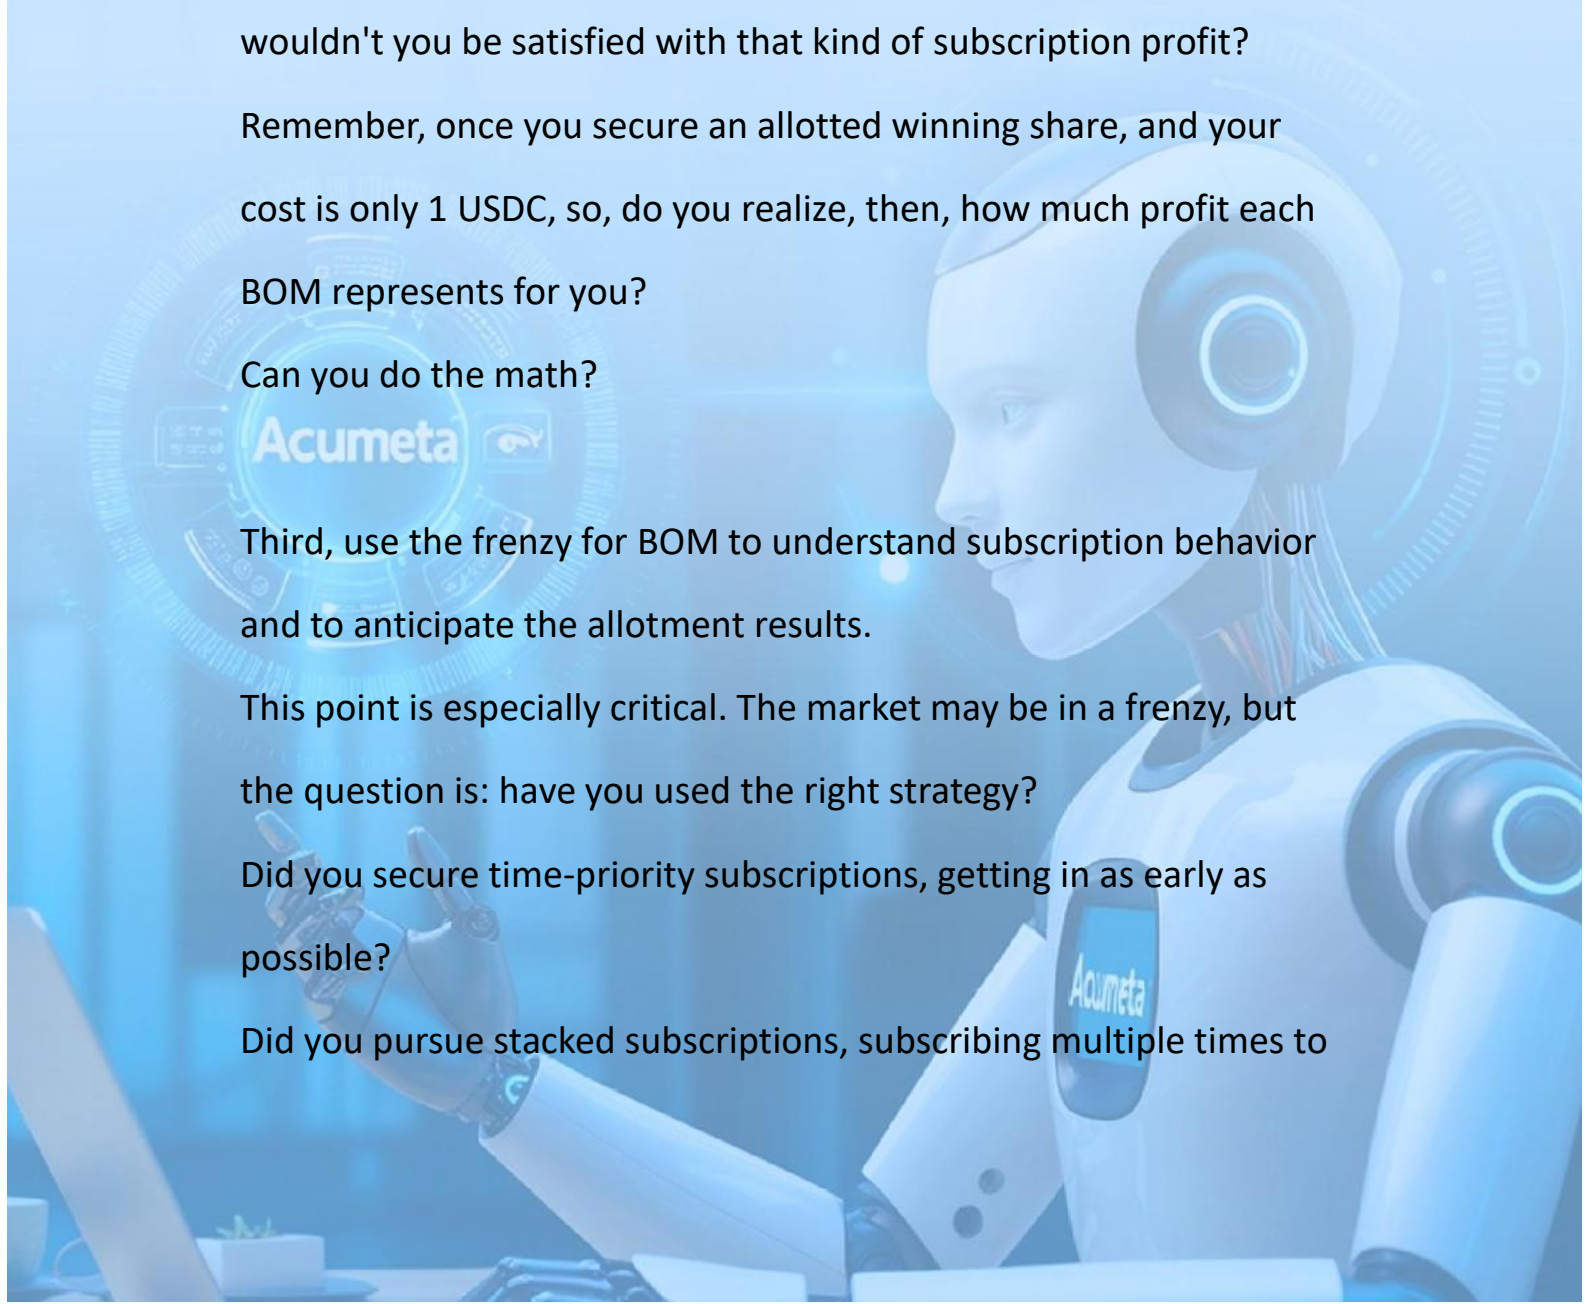

Can you do the math?

Third, use the frenzy for BOM to understand subscription behavior and to anticipate the allotment results.

This point is especially critical. The market may be in a frenzy, but the question is: have you used the right strategy?

Did you secure time-priority subscriptions, getting in as early as possible?

Did you pursue stacked subscriptions, subscribing multiple times to increase your weight?

Did you ultimately build a large-lot subscription position?

Those who committed substantial capital from the start, or who built up their position through repeated stacked subscriptions—are the true winners of this wealth feast.

Within BOM's subscription window, earlier and larger—that is the iron law of wealth.

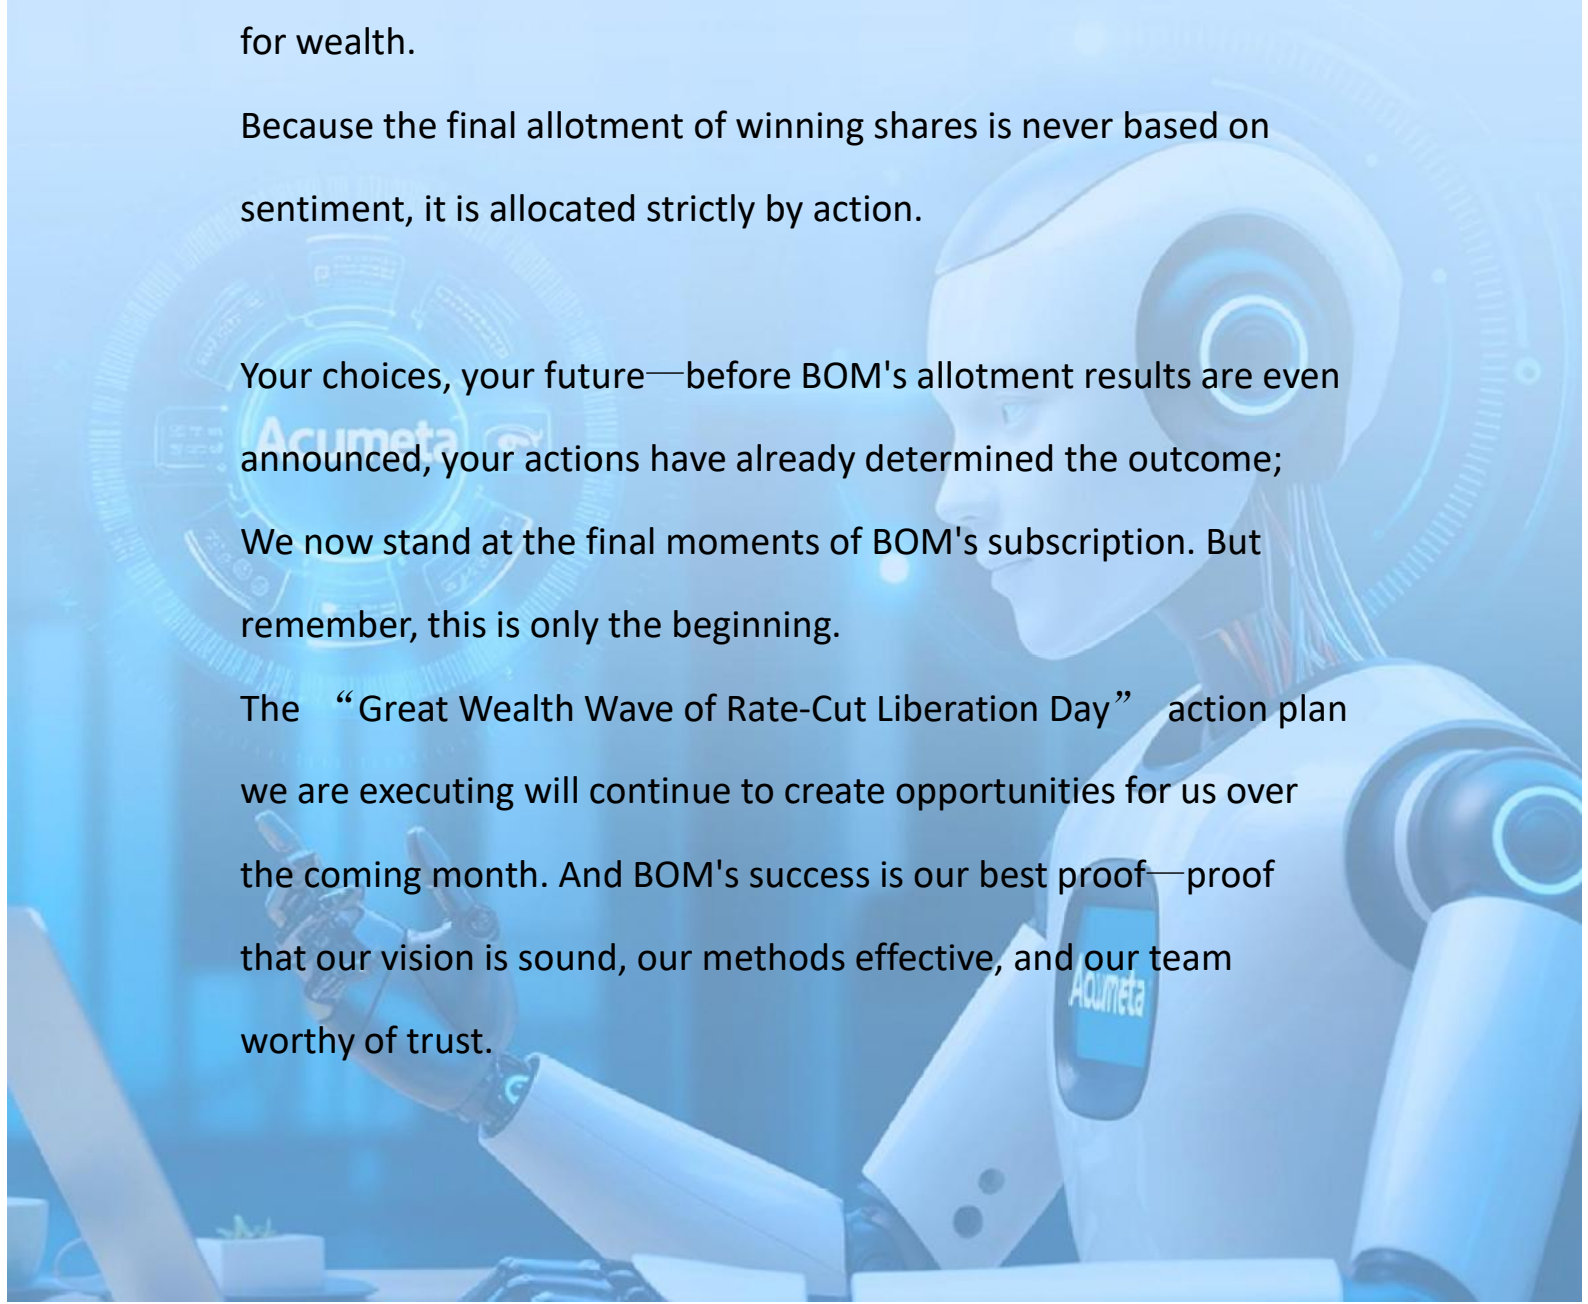

When the data is finally locked in, it is more than a number—it is the ultimate test, revealing how you have fared in this competition for wealth.

Because the final allotment of winning shares is never based on sentiment, it is allocated strictly by action.

Your choices, your future—before BOM's allotment results are even announced, your actions have already determined the outcome;

We now stand at the final moments of BOM's subscription. But remember, this is only the beginning.

The “Great Wealth Wave of Rate-Cut Liberation Day” action plan we are executing will continue to create opportunities for us over the coming month. And BOM's success is our best proof—proof that our vision is sound, our methods effective, and our team worthy of trust.

Today, rather than rushing to forecast the future, let us first look back, let us carefully retrace the journey we have shared together in the BOM subscription.

This has been more than an investment, it has been an epic journey. From the very start, we witnessed BOM's privileged position as a space launch management project, along with its extraordinary valuation within the industry. We delved into its technological foundation, its market potential, and its vision for the future.

As we weathered the baptism of the market, we witnessed real money casting its vote for BOM's new token. Every injection of subscription capital was like a ballot cast for BOM's future. These votes converged into a torrent, culminating in today's astonishing subscription results!

Perhaps, along the way, we did not predict every rise and fall with perfect accuracy. After all, the market is full of uncertainty. But what I want to emphasize is this: in terms of the overall direction, we were absolutely correct! And I believe that I, along with all our long-term partner-members, feel not only satisfied, but genuinely delighted!

Because through the market and its final outcome, we jointly witnessed that this action power carries immense practical value!

This has been not only a theoretical victory, but a victory proven in hard cash!

Think about it, every 1% increase in BOM's subscription data meant another 1.5 million USDC flowing in! When the subscription data rose from 100% to 800%, it represented over 1.2 billion dollars surging into the project. That is the true impact of "real money voting."

When others choose, you should not sit on the sidelines! You should seek to understand it, to study it, to experience it. Because the signals of the market are often more real and more direct than any analyst's report.

In the financial markets, the greatest danger is not loss—it is missing out. When everyone else is running at full speed and you stand still, you will never reach the finish line.

One of the most reassuring features of subscribing to BOM's new token is this: if you are not allotted winning shares, all of your funds will be fully returned once the allotment results are announced.

This is what we have always emphasized as a 0 risk investment experience!

It gives you a perfect chance to gain without the risk of loss. What you put in is only your time and your decisiveness. What you gain is not only the potential for outsized returns, but also invaluable hands-on experience, a "wealth code" that equips you to seize future opportunities more effectively!

Pals, this is the truest reflection of what we have lived through. The BOM subscription has given us a perfect real-world opportunity. It has taught us:

*Market signals are often more real than any theory.

Decisive action is the true driving force of wealth.

"0 risk" investment does exist, and it is worth treasuring and seizing.

The real winners are always those who can learn from practice and keep advancing!

My blessings to all of my long-term partner-members!

Today we gather not to celebrate a conclusion, but to bear witness to a new beginning.

With the perfect close of BOM's new token subscription, let us look back—at the token FGT redemption carnival, the tokens in your hands are surging rapidly!

Please, open your accounts and see for yourselves—aren't the tokens you hold from the token FGT redemption carnival climbing at full speed?

This unstoppable upward trend is not merely a bout of market sentiment, it is a powerful and undeniable signal.

It confirms for us 3 critical truths—truths that will fundamentally reshape how we understand the road to future wealth.

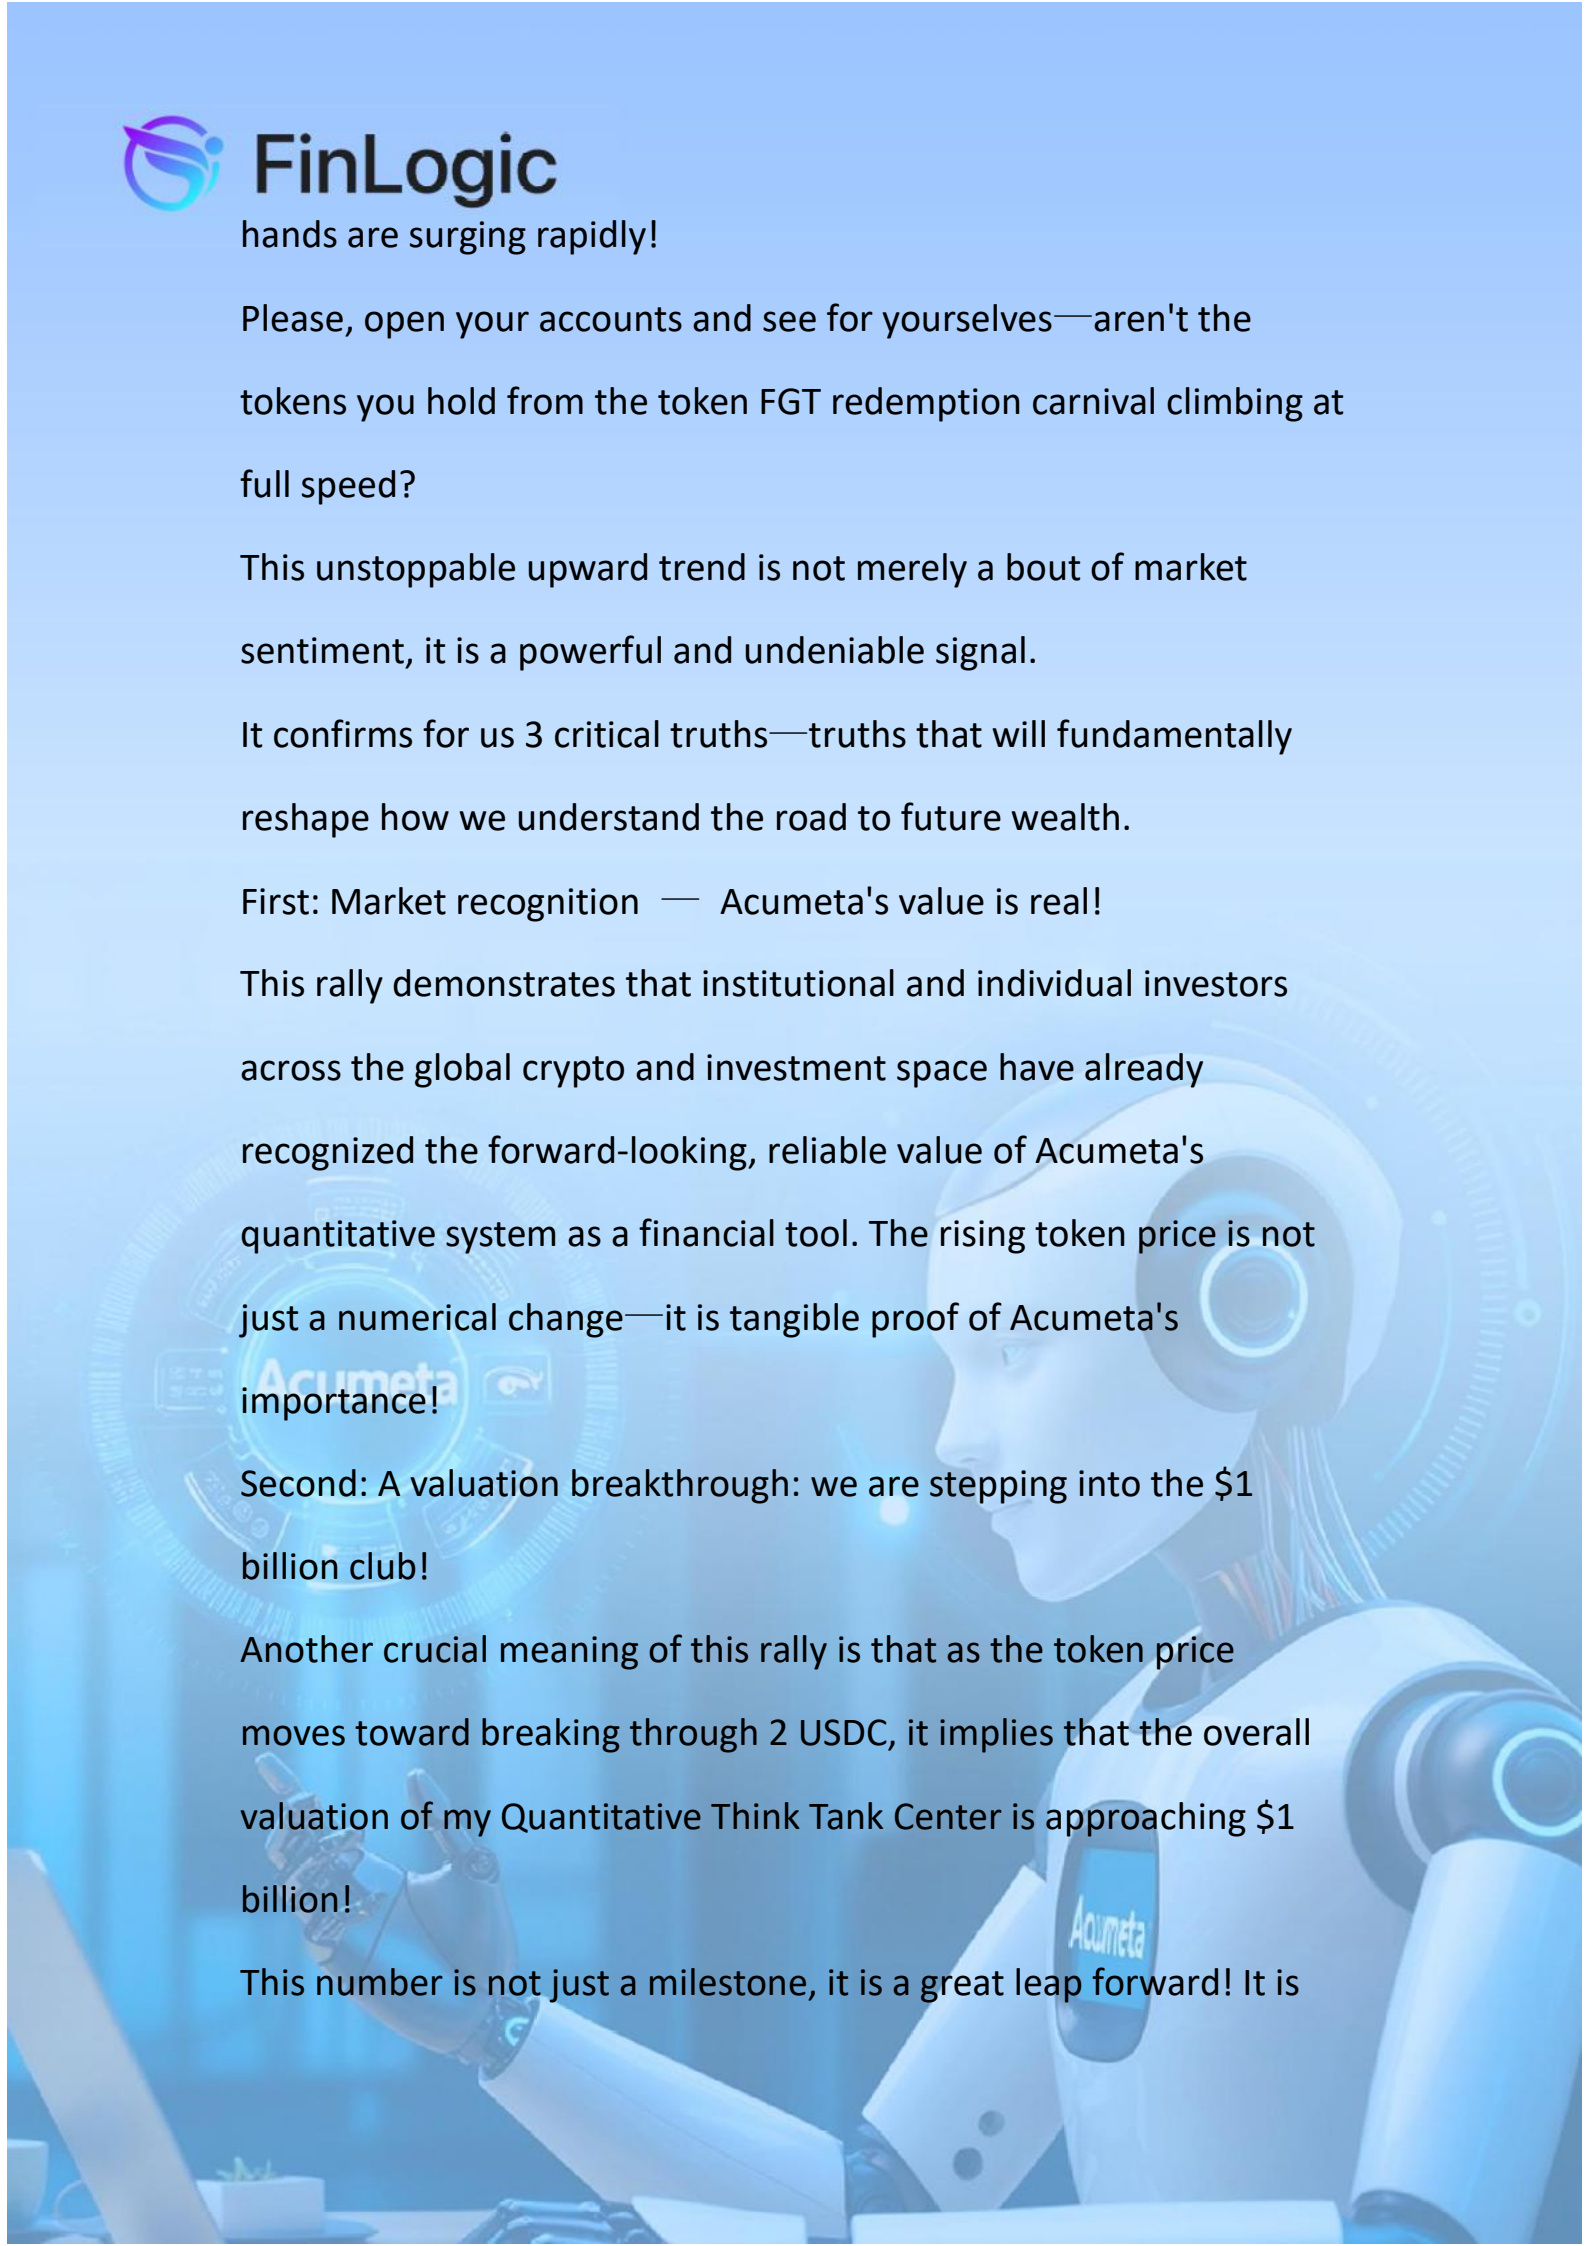

First: Market recognition — Acumeta's value is real!

This rally demonstrates that institutional and individual investors across the global crypto and investment space have already recognized the forward-looking, reliable value of Acumeta's quantitative system as a financial tool. The rising token price is not just a numerical change—it is tangible proof of Acumeta's importance!

Second: A valuation breakthrough: we are stepping into the $1 billion club!

Another crucial meaning of this rally is that as the token price moves toward breaking through 2 USDC, it implies that the overall valuation of my Quantitative Think Tank Center is approaching $1 billion!

This number is not just a milestone, it is a great leap forward! It is the result of the collective effort and drive of our entire team, and of every long-term partner-member who has stood with us!

FinLogic

Third: A grand vision: our target is $3 billion!

It gives us a steadfast conviction: as our valuation rises, the goal of the FinLogic Quantitative Think Tank Center is to reach a valuation of over $3 billion!

This figure is far from an empty slogan; it is anchored in history and supported by tangible precedent!

Take Oracle today, its blowout earnings triggered a market-cap surge of almost "nuclear" proportions. That growth alone propelled founder Larry Ellison to the position of the world's richest man, officially surpassing Elon Musk!

This example offers us enormous inspiration. It proves that under the driving forces of technology and vision, a company's valuation can achieve exponential growth at a pace one could hardly imagine.

As we all know, the "Stargate" project promoted by Trump earlier this year has at its core Oracle + OpenAI + Japan's SoftBank.

Doesn't this make clear that the strategic vision of our Quantitative Think Tank Center is sharply defined, that the course we have set and the objectives we pursue are in full alignment with the world's foremost capital and projects?

Doesn't a long-term partnership with us inspire in you limitless confidence and outlook?

Our success is the best proof of your success.

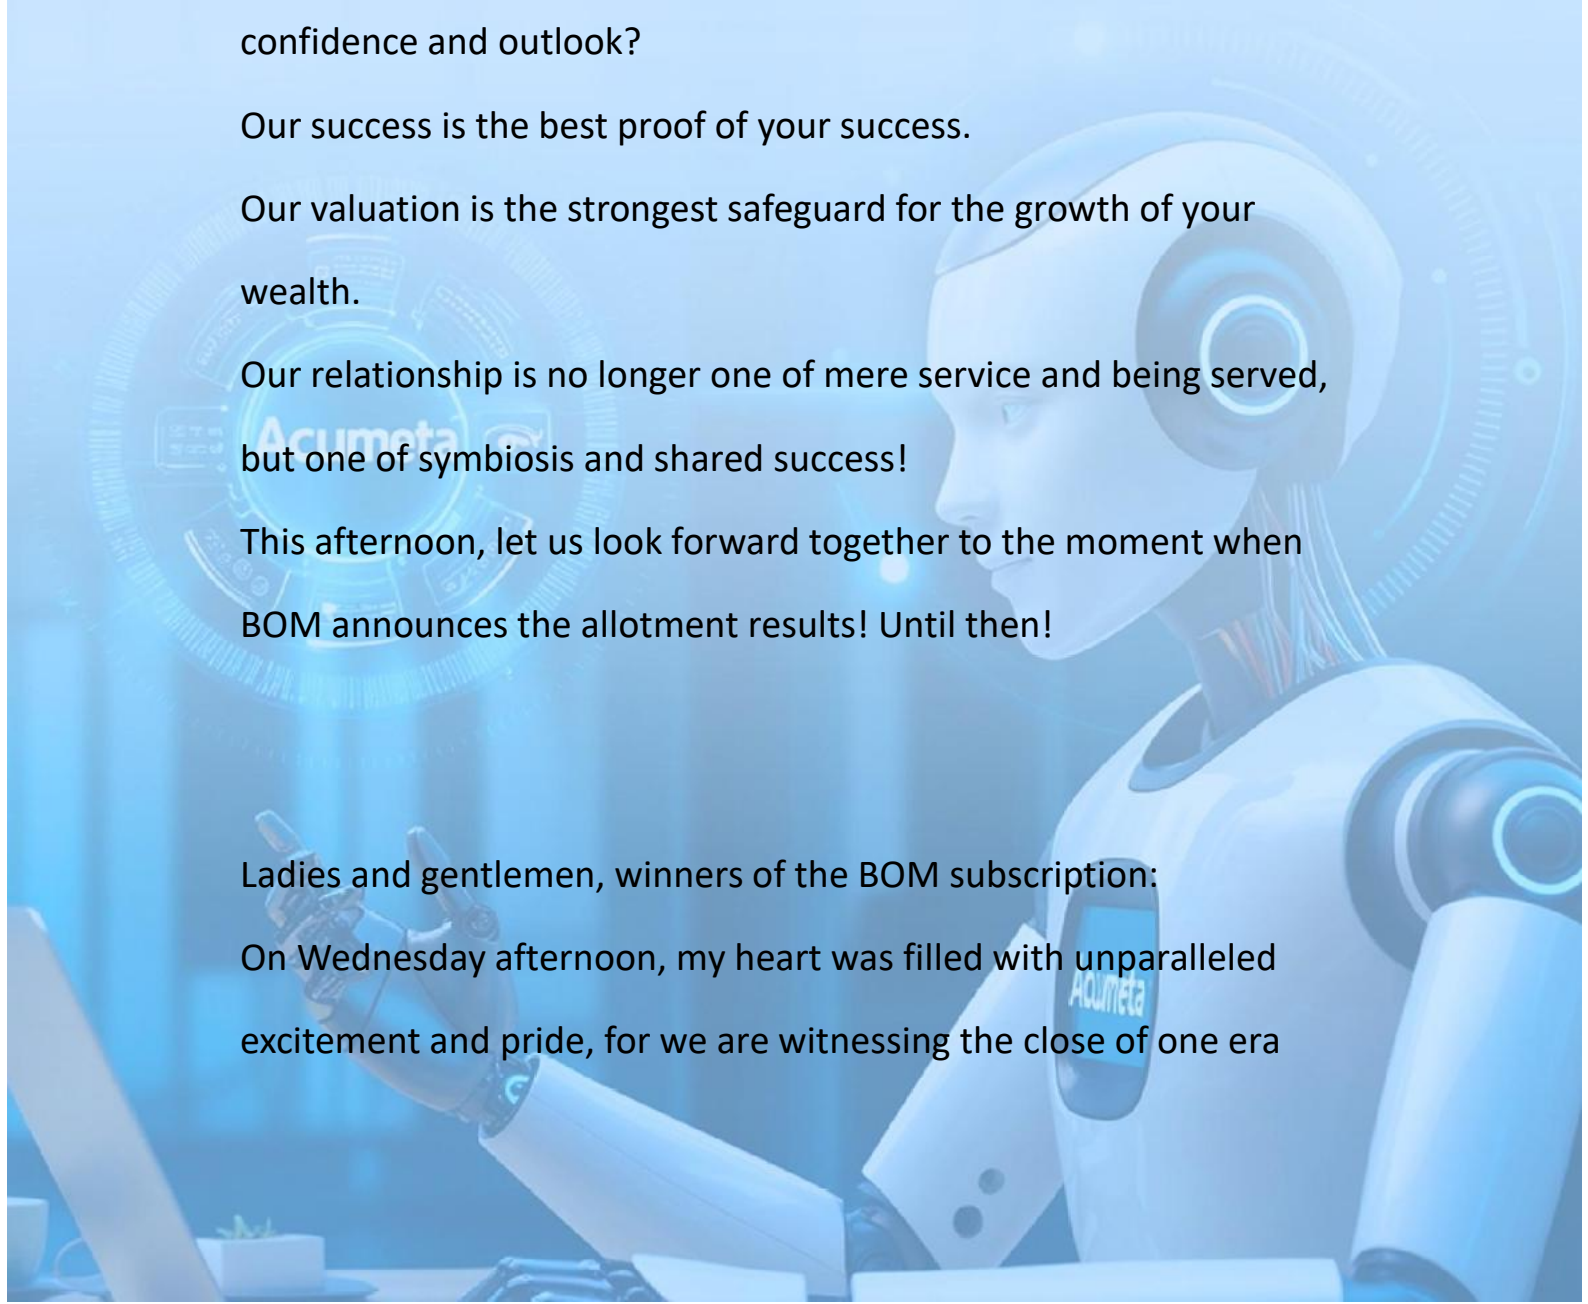

Our valuation is the strongest safeguard for the growth of your wealth.

Our relationship is no longer one of mere service and being served, but one of symbiosis and shared success!

This afternoon, let us look forward together to the moment when BOM announces the allotment results! Until then!

Ladies and gentlemen, winners of the BOM subscription:

On Wednesday afternoon, my heart was filled with unparalleled excitement and pride, for we are witnessing the close of one era and the birth of another!

The stock market has just delivered a set of numbers both sobering and thought-provoking.

I am sure each of you has seen them: Apple down 3%; Oracle up 36%!

This is not merely the rise and fall of two companies' share prices, my friends. Behind it lies a vast, undeniable signal— one powerful enough to upend everything you thought you knew about the future!

The end of an era: the twilight of hardware.

Just yesterday, Apple held its annual product launch. The eyes of the world were once again fixed on this onetime giant. People were expecting the next iPhone, expecting hardware that might once again change the world.

And the result? The market's reaction was indifferent, if not outright

The close of a hardware era!

Today, companies that relied on hardware alone to win have lost their magic, for innovation in hardware has reached its ceiling.

The birth of a new era: the rise of software and computing power

Today, Oracle delivered historic, blowout guidance. Its stock price soared 36% in a single day! As a core participant in America's [Stargate] project, it was like a sleeping giant suddenly awakened, proclaiming to the world: “I am the true master of the future!”

This is the signal of a new age of software and computing power!

Oracle—a company renowned for its databases—represents software, data, and computing power. Its success proves that in the future, whoever commands powerful software systems, massive databases, and formidable computing capacity will become the new hegemon!

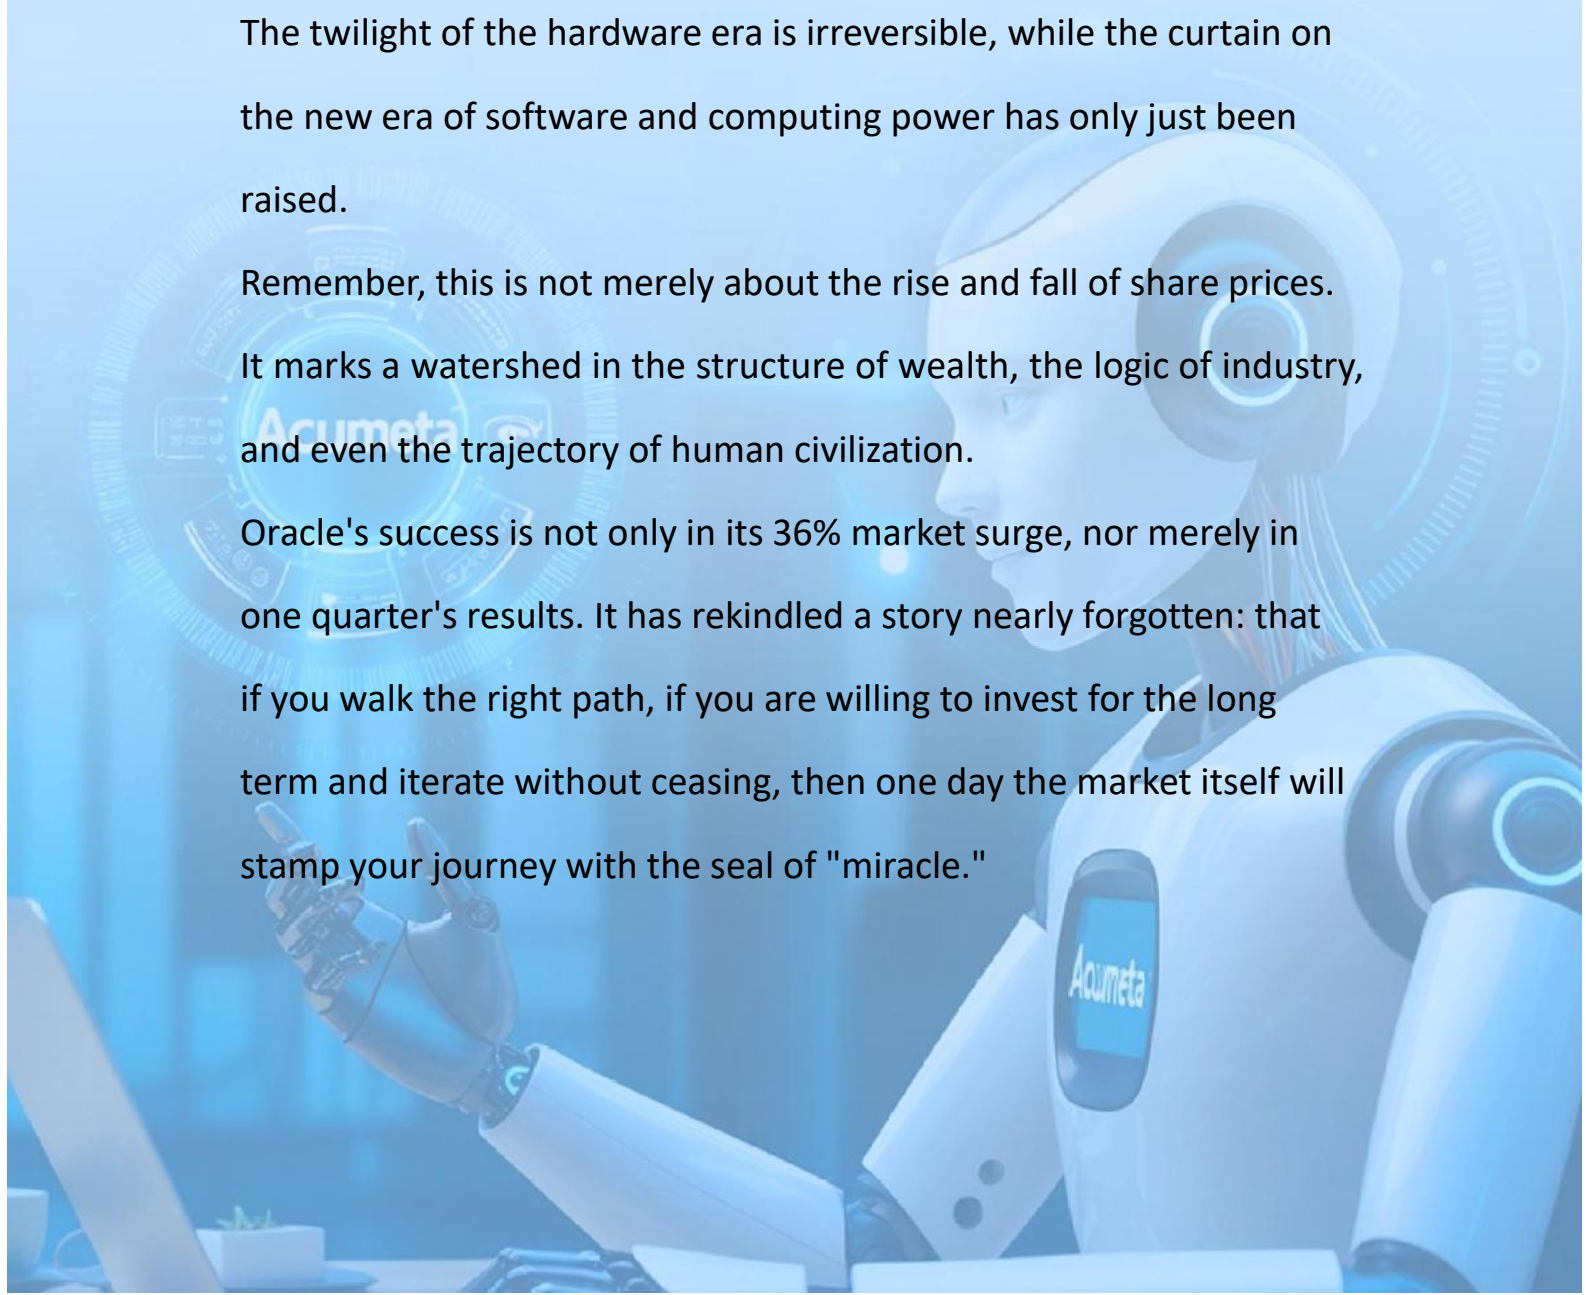

Just as with every great migration of wealth in history, there are always those who see the turning point, climb aboard without hesitation, and ultimately become the winners of their era. And there are always those who linger over yesterday's glory, only to stand helplessly on the shore as the great wave of wealth rolls past. Today's Apple and Oracle are living case studies of this truth.

Pals: the market will not wait for your hesitation. It rewards only those who discern the trend and dare to act.

The twilight of the hardware era is irreversible, while the curtain on the new era of software and computing power has only just been raised.

Remember, this is not merely about the rise and fall of share prices. It marks a watershed in the structure of wealth, the logic of industry, and even the trajectory of human civilization.

Oracle's success is not only in its 36% market surge, nor merely in one quarter's results. It has rekindled a story nearly forgotten: that if you walk the right path, if you are willing to invest for the long term and iterate without ceasing, then one day the market itself will stamp your journey with the seal of "miracle."

Under the glow of Oracle's success and the halo of its founder Ellison becoming the "world's richest man," we have witnessed the AI wealth-creation saga welcome yet another favored child!

What lesson does this story give us? That wealth does not fall from the sky overnight, it comes from choosing the right direction, from continuous refinement, from relentless self-optimization.

As my mentor once said: "Luck is when opportunity meets preparation."

Persevere, refine, iterate, wait—and in the end, let the market validate you with its applause.

And this makes me all the more convinced that Acumeta's success is inevitable! Why? Because the path we are on, like Oracle's, is the very track destined for explosive growth. Friends, let us not forget, AI is not a fleeting trend, it is the greatest migration of wealth humanity will witness in the coming decades.

When the moment of glory arrives, it will be like a divine gift—bringing you an unending flow of wealth!

As long as we continue refining it, as long as we keep creating room for improvement, our "moment of explosion" will surely arrive!

A prophecy for the future: Acumeta's global debut.

The next-gen financial assistant tool will not require years of waiting —not next year, not the year after! By the end of this very year, you will witness its global launch and presale!

This will be the most important milestone in Acumeta's history, and the moment when all of our long-term members harvest the fruits of our collective effort! It will draw the eyes of the world, win the recognition of global capital, and redefine our understanding of financial assistant tools.

My quantitative system has begun to make its mark in the market, delivering significant returns for me and establishing itself as a successful investor in its own right. Success is never instantaneous. It demands perseverance, effort, and the faith that the path you have chosen is the right one!

We are not here to talk about theories or trends, we are here to talk about results! Because the moment we have all been waiting for has finally arrived!

With the successful close of the BOM token subscription, today we welcome the moment to validate Acumeta's full predictions and reasoning on the allotment results.

I can feel the anticipation from everyone in front of their screens. You are all wondering: "What is my allotment result? Has my effort been rewarded?"

I must tell you, the official afternoon announcement has given us the most direct and electrifying answer. As soon as the BOM subscription closed at midday, they immediately executed an AI-driven weighted computation to allocate shares.

This is not merely an announcement, it is the ultimate test of Acumeta's forward-looking reasoning and its extraordinary capacity in big-data computation!

The heat behind the name BOM.

Today we stand at a point of validation—a double validation: it is both a testament to the market's fervor and a live test of Acumeta's big-data reasoning and AI computing power.

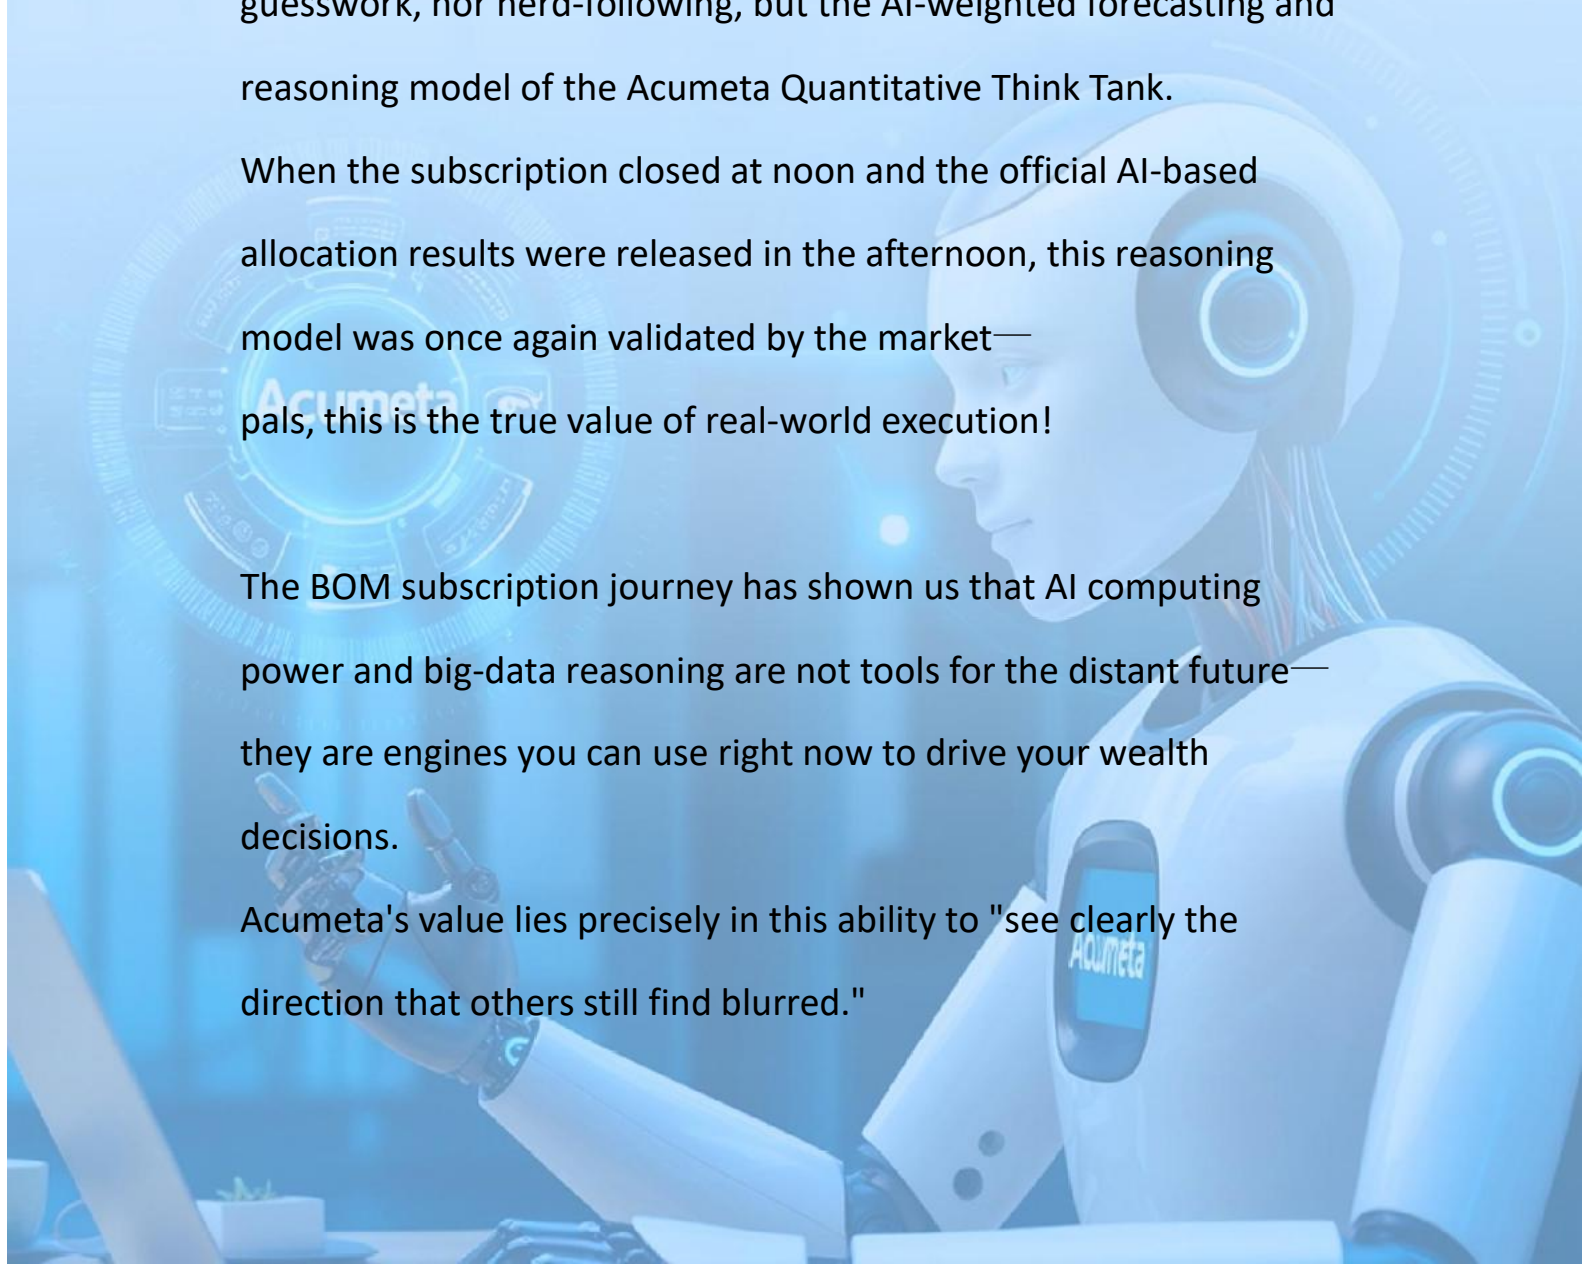

When we first projected that BOM's valuation would fall in the range of $1 – 1.5 billion, how many shook their heads and asked, "Isn't that far too optimistic?"

At the time, we said this range could open up 700% – 1000% of upside potential. And the foundation for that judgment was not guesswork, nor herd-following, but the AI-weighted forecasting and reasoning model of the Acumeta Quantitative Think Tank.

When the subscription closed at noon and the official AI-based allocation results were released in the afternoon, this reasoning model was once again validated by the market—pals, this is the true value of real-world execution!

The BOM subscription journey has shown us that AI computing power and big-data reasoning are not tools for the distant future—they are engines you can use right now to drive your wealth decisions.

Acumeta's value lies precisely in this ability to "see clearly the direction that others still find blurred."

Behind BOM lies the financing logic of a high-computing-power scenario like an aerospace launch management platform. In other words, this is not merely a token, it is a piece of the puzzle in building the infrastructure of a new world.

It teaches us that allotment is not a simple matter of "first come, first served." It is governed by a complex weighted algorithm—one that factors in your subscription rules, the size of your commitment, and even the timing of your entry, to determine your final allocation.

Validation: your action, your reward!

Now, I want each of you to go and check your account on ETHERMAC crypto exchange! Look to see whether your account already shows your allotted BOM shares!

And I hope you can tell me with confidence: did you, by following your subscription strategy and layering your subscription commitments, secure an allocation result that satisfies you?

When the BOM subscription window first opened, I did not hesitate, I immediately urged all members to complete their subscriptions. In the days that followed, I watched the market's fervor daily and witnessed the subscription data surge with astonishing speed.

I did not feel panic, on the contrary, my conviction grew stronger.

Again and again, I urged you to layer your subscriptions, again and again to add more funds.

I knew I was not gambling. I was executing a plan precisely calculated by Acumeta. I knew that with every layer I added, I increased my final allocation weight. I knew that every action I took was laying another brick in the foundation of my future wealth! Today, when the final results were announced, you were not surprised—for in your account, the BOM allotment was greater than I had even anticipated!

Your actions, your resolve, your courage, all of these ultimately show themselves in your rewards!

Conclusion: trust the data, trust the future!

Pals, today's success is not only BOM's success, but Acumeta's success as well!

The BOM subscription window has closed, and the allotment results are settled. Now we stand before the final step in this epic journey of validation!

That final step is to see whether BOM will debut at a price above 8 USDC!

You are all wondering: "Just how much return will my allotted shares bring me?" According to the latest official announcement, later this evening they will release a major update on BOM's listing schedule!

I hope you will stay with me in following this news closely, because it will provide the ultimate answer to this wealth journey.

Pals, whether today's BOM allotment results bring you joy or regret, they are nothing more than the sum of your investment actions over the past week in this project.

Facing the results: your actions, your rewards!

Because every outcome comes from your own actions! So if you are satisfied with your results—congratulations! It means your decisiveness has been validated by the market!

It proves that you are a person of foresight, courage, and resolve.

You were not distracted by the market's noise, nor swayed by your own fear. You seized the opportunity, and through your actions, secured this victory for yourself!

If you still feel regret, then next time—do not remain silent! And if there is still some remorse in your result, I hope you face it with honesty. It does not mean you failed, it only means there are areas to improve in this game.

I hope you remember that when the next opportunity arises, you must take hold of every subscription strategy and signal we've given you this time!

You must grasp clearly why we emphasize subscribing early, why we encourage layering your subscriptions, and why we push you to build a sizeable position!

These are not just strategies, they are the product of Acumeta's precise calculations, tested repeatedly by the market. They are the "wealth code" distilled from countless rounds of real-world practice!

The true winners are always those who can learn from failure and keep advancing!

Passive dilution is the most dangerous "killer" in the STO subscription market for new tokens! It does not make you see losses immediately; instead, it slowly eats away at your allocation, bit by bit eroding your returns. And the only weapon you have against it is the act of layered subscriptions!

Now that the red-hot BOM subscription has closed successfully, a question may have crossed your mind: "Will we have nothing to do next?"

The answer is: absolutely not!

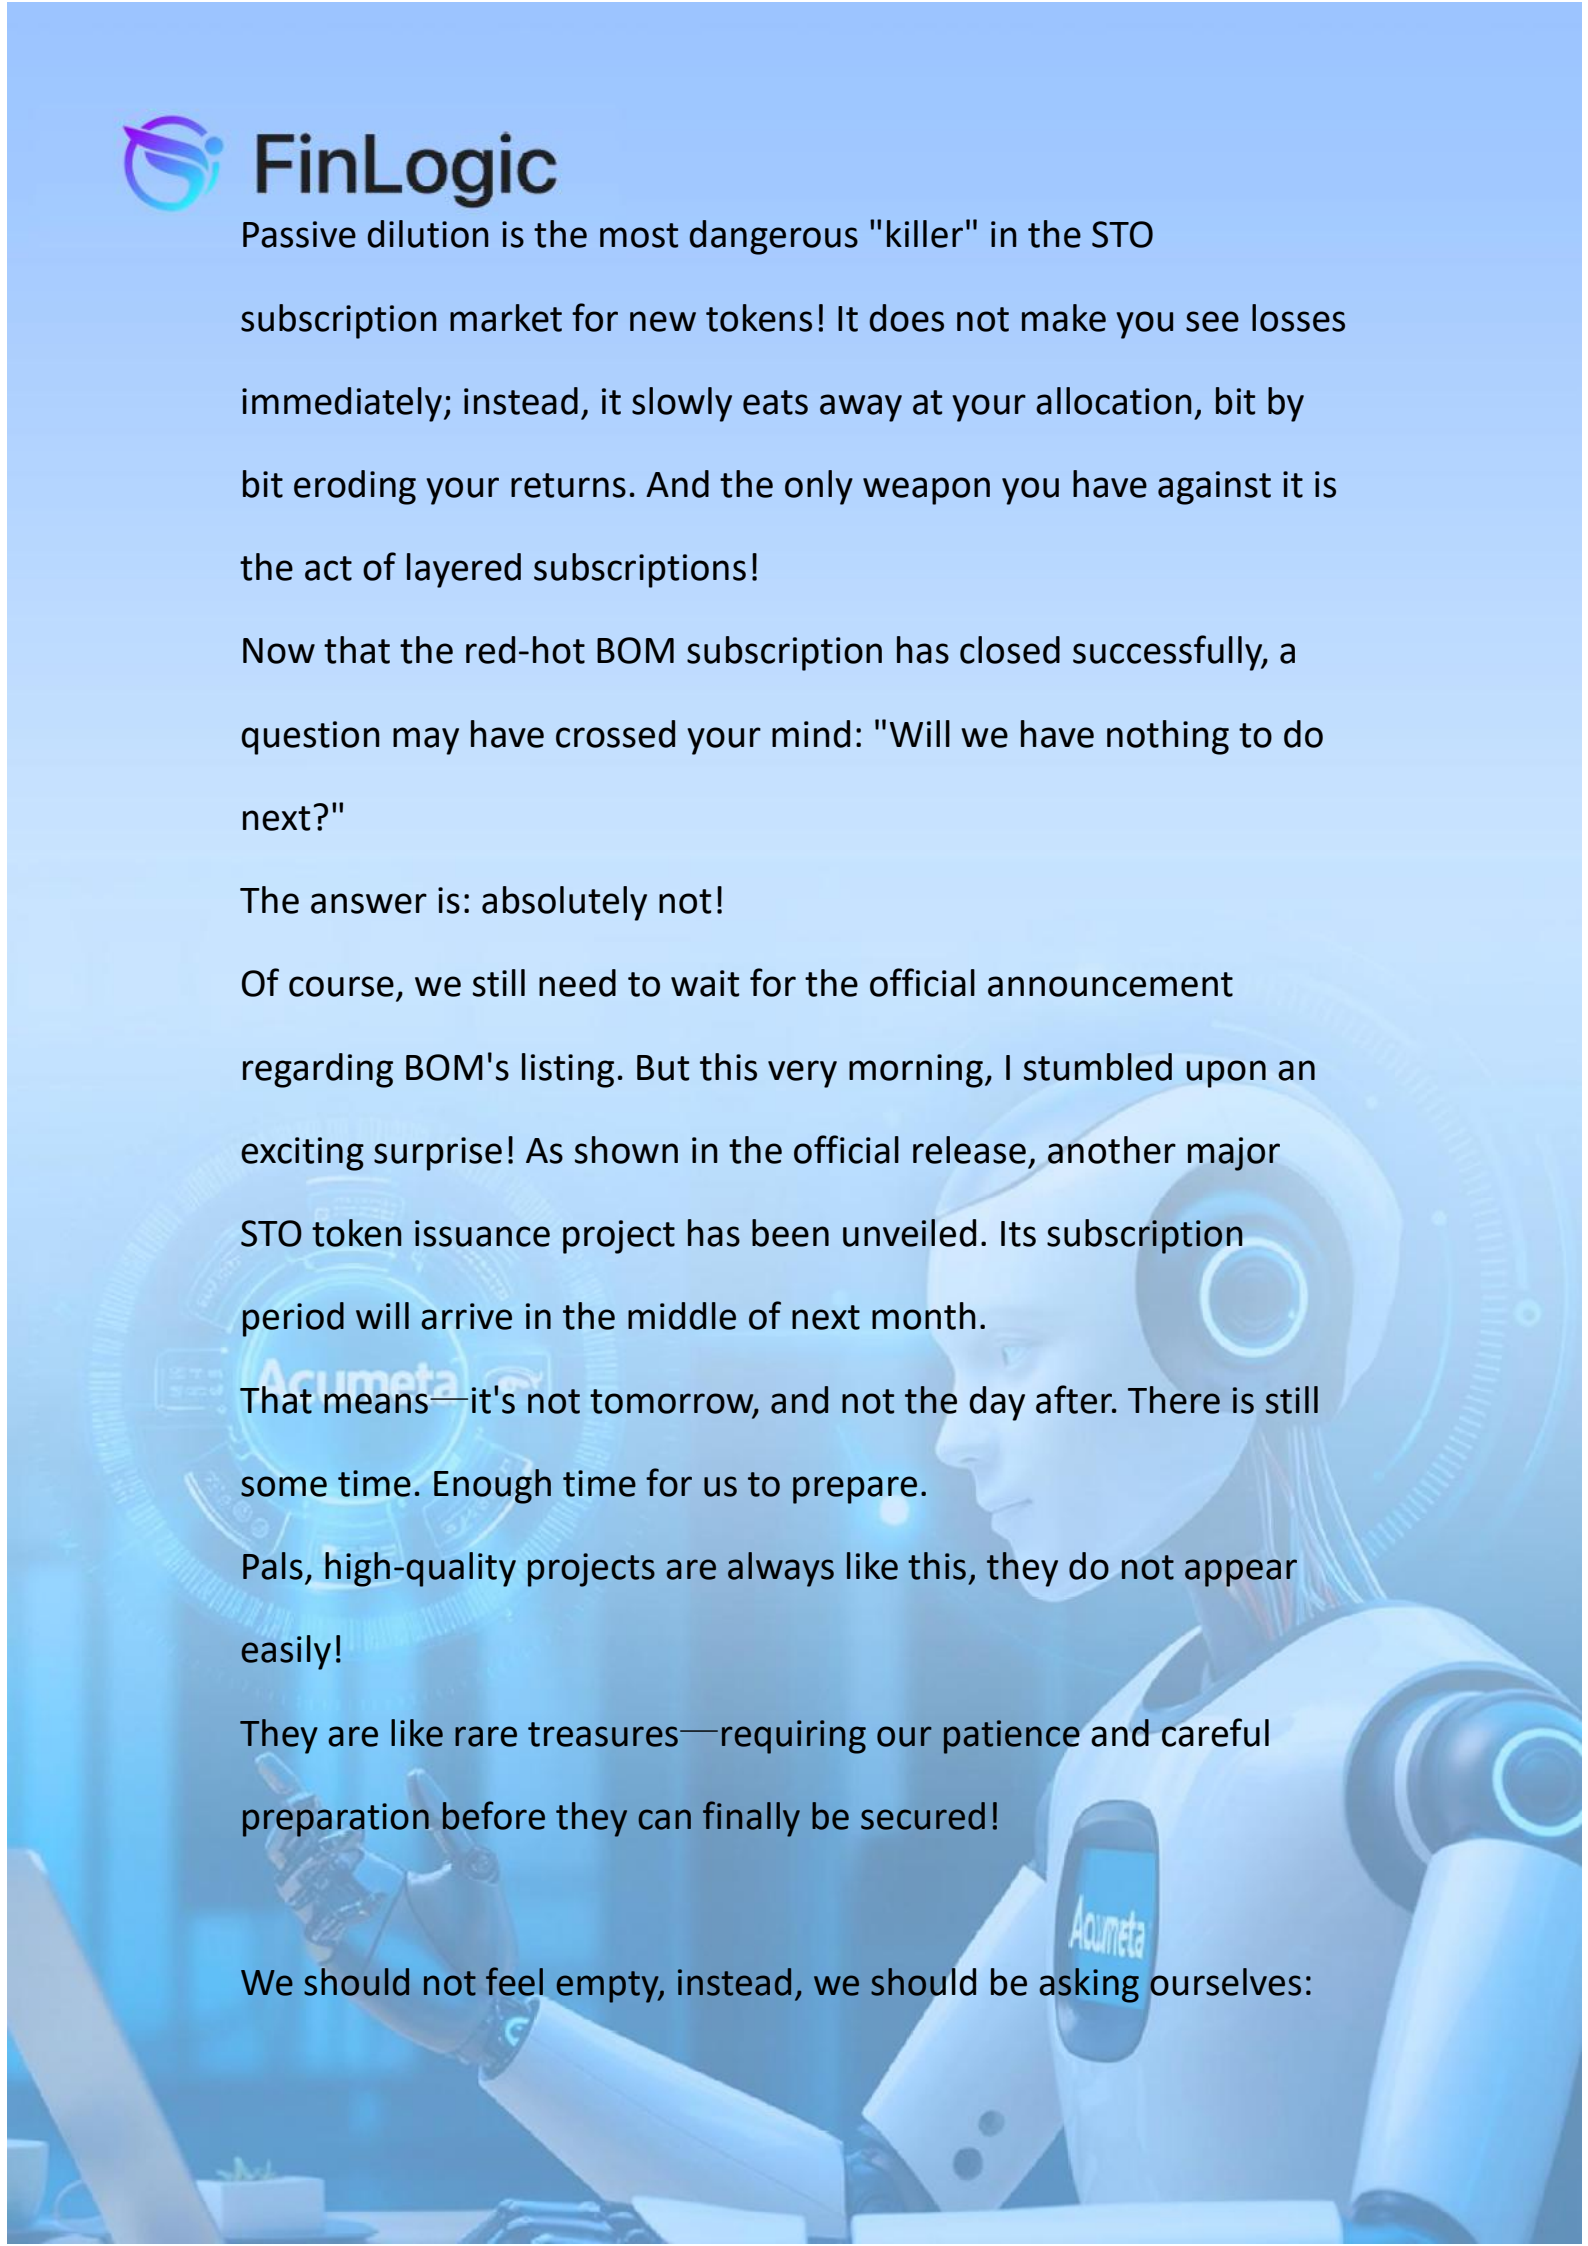

Of course, we still need to wait for the official announcement regarding BOM's listing. But this very morning, I stumbled upon an exciting surprise! As shown in the official release, another major STO token issuance project has been unveiled. Its subscription period will arrive in the middle of next month.

That means—it's not tomorrow, and not the day after. There is still some time. Enough time for us to prepare.

Pals, high-quality projects are always like this, they do not appear easily!

They are like rare treasures—requiring our patience and careful preparation before they can finally be secured!

We should not feel empty, instead, we should be asking ourselves:

how can we raise more capital before the next subscription window opens, so that we may join the true vanguard of subscribers?

The BOM subscription has given us a precious lesson. We witnessed the market's frenzy with our own eyes, we felt the harsh reality of passive dilution firsthand.

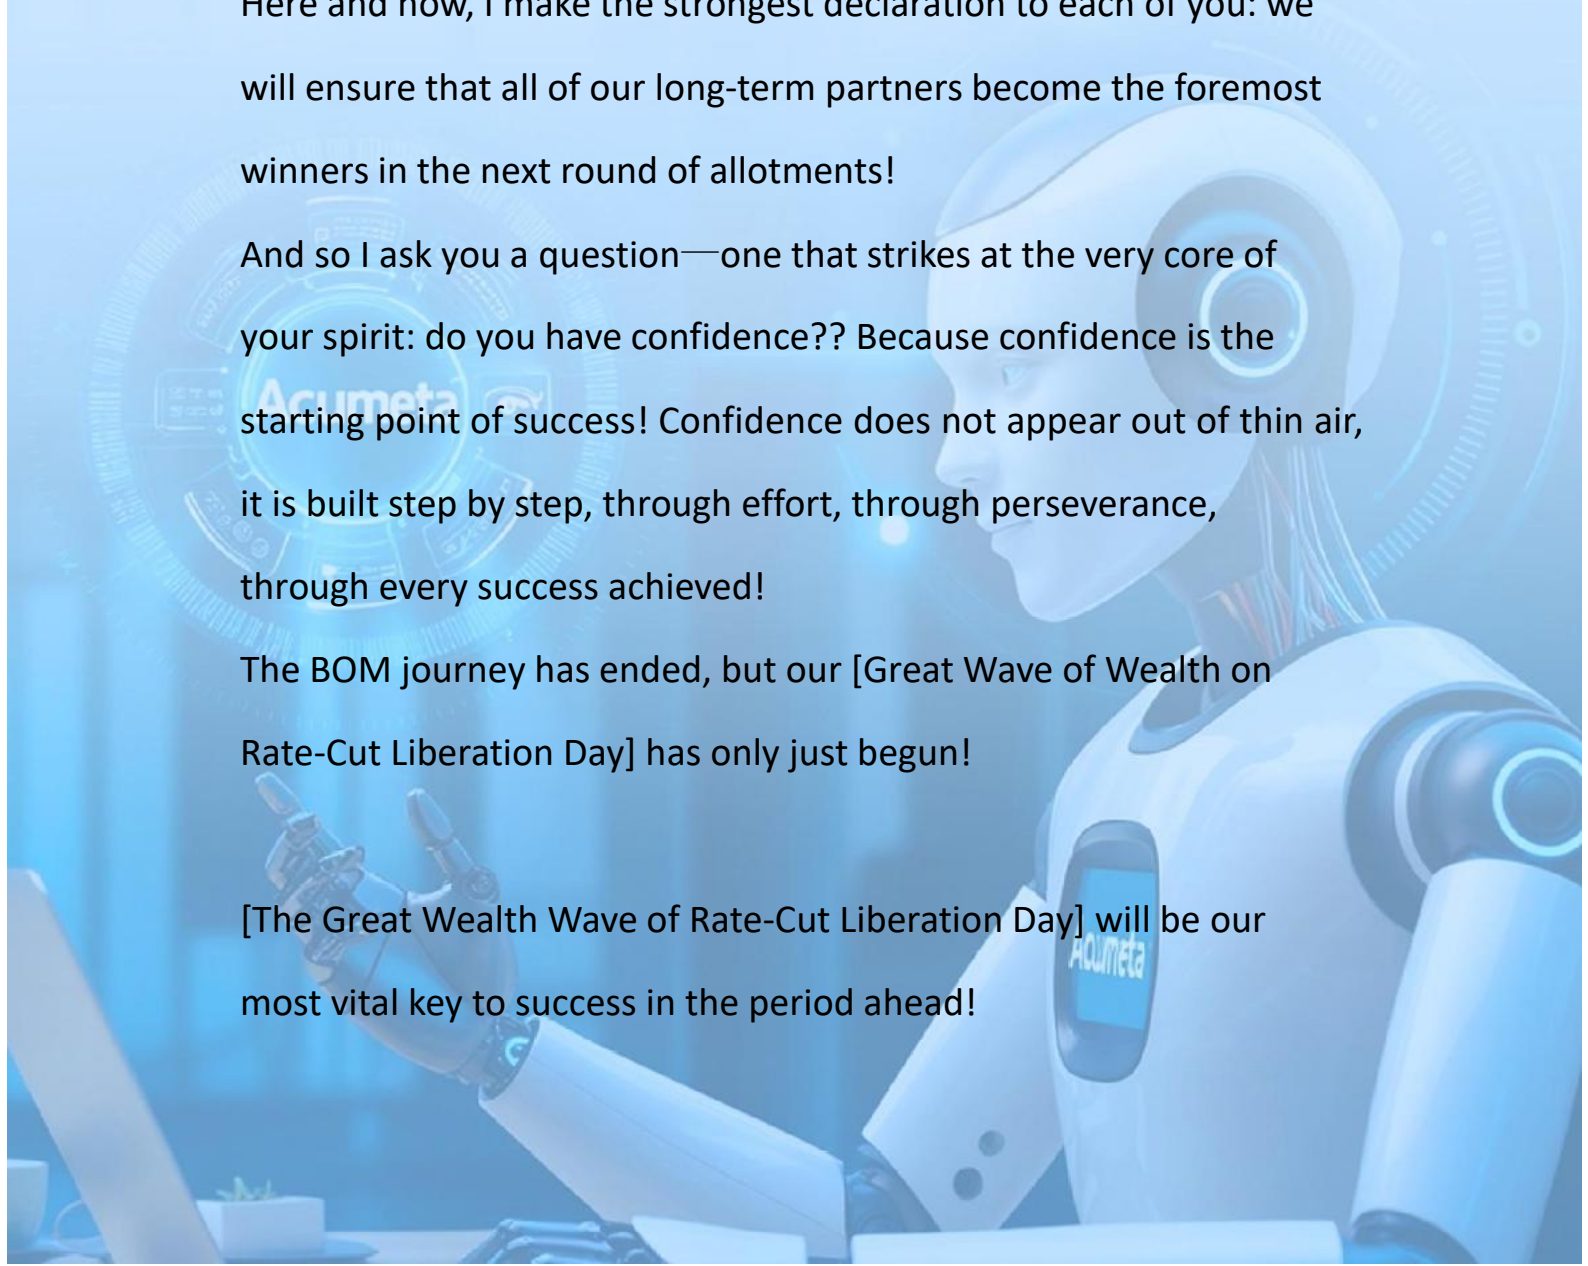

Through this experience, we have come to deeply understand the importance of time-priority subscriptions, we have mastered the strategy of layered subscriptions, and we now know what it takes to secure a "substantial allocation."

Here and now, I make the strongest declaration to each of you: we will ensure that all of our long-term partners become the foremost winners in the next round of allotments!

And so I ask you a question—one that strikes at the very core of your spirit: do you have confidence?? Because confidence is the starting point of success! Confidence does not appear out of thin air, it is built step by step, through effort, through perseverance, through every success achieved!

The BOM journey has ended, but our [Great Wave of Wealth on Rate-Cut Liberation Day] has only just begun!

[The Great Wealth Wave of Rate-Cut Liberation Day] will be our most vital key to success in the period ahead!

It is not a flashy slogan, but a manual for "translating opportunity into decisive action."

I suggest you read it again, put it into practice, and follow it each day, it is a treasure map leading to financial freedom!

We all know that currency surfing delivers instant gratification. That thrill of seizing an opportunity amid market volatility and locking in profits is unmatched by any other form of investment! And you have only just begun to experience it.

The perfect moment is still ahead! As the Federal Reserve's rate-cut rhetoric gains momentum, the market will become even more active and ripe with opportunities for trading and execution!

The ultimate "wealth code" will be revealed with Thursday's CPI release—the last and most decisive economic data point before the Fed's September rate cut! It will determine whether the cut is 25 bp or 50 bp.

Acumeta's forecast: intraday returns exceeding 200%!

This is more than a projection, it is a challenge. A challenge that demands our courage and decisiveness to fulfill!

I look forward to Thursday—to share with you in witnessing the good, in witnessing happiness, and in witnessing the conviction that may reshape your family's future. Until we meet again!
