FinLogic

Monday, Sep 22, 2025

Ladies and gentlemen, pioneers of the quantitative frontier,

Good morning, and welcome to a fresh start this Monday.

The path we are building is nothing less than legendary—and we walk it alongside those striving to shape legacies of their own. The air today carries a certain sharp freshness, tinged with the quiet ceremony unique to a Monday morning. Once again, we find ourselves at a new threshold.

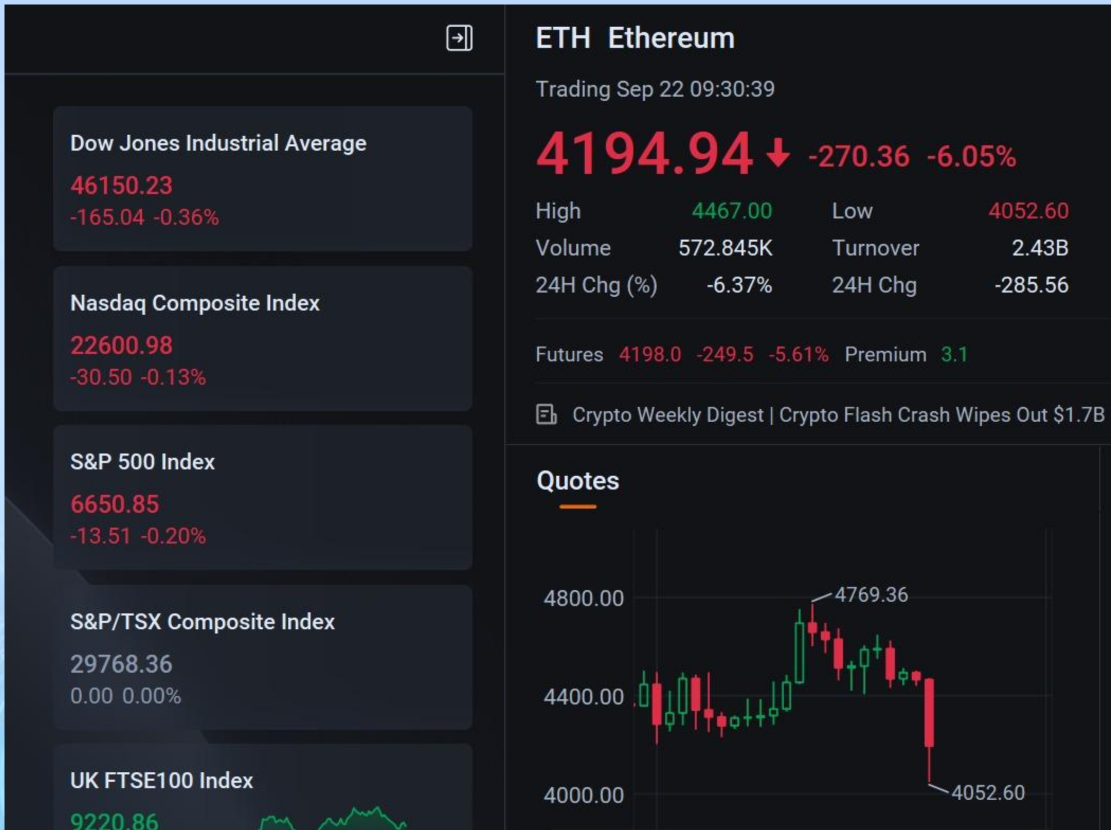
People often say, "The future cannot be known." Yet the truth is this: the broad outlines of tomorrow are often embedded in the choices you make today. You cannot predict whether the next person you meet will open a decisive door, nor can you forecast whether markets three months from now will be calm waters or crashing waves. But you can decide whether, today, you will act with the courage to earn what is rightfully yours, and whether you will move forward with steps that are firmly your own.

That is the meaning of Monday. It is not an ordinary beginning—it is a reminder. A reminder that, compared with last night's hesitation, you must now see with greater clarity; compared with the noise in others' eyes, you must stand with greater conviction.

Courageous currency surfers, we stand at a decisive turning point. Why? Because starting today, all our members won't just following Acumeta's signals, but choosing the style of surfing that speaks most directly to you—one that aligns with your temperament and conviction. You are no longer a spectator pushed along by the tide; you are the captain, hands firmly on the helm.

You must choose yourself. Choose a perspective that is distinctly your own. Choose the courage not to drift with the current. You may listen to the voices around you, but in the end, the path to building lasting wealth is one that only you can walk.

This is also the spirit behind today's official “Thumbs Up for You” short-video campaign, designed to showcase the genuine appreciation ETHERMAC Crypto Exchange has earned from users across North America and beyond. Whatever you let slip by will surely become an opportunity seized by someone else.



Why did the crypto markets stage a “Black Monday”?

Only days ago, the Federal Reserve had announced a rate cut, and optimism was running high—voices across the market were hailing the dawn of a new bull cycle. Yet today, pre-market equities slipped, and cryptocurrencies led the way down. Anxiety spread quickly, with some even questioning whether we were witnessing the first signs of a collapse.

Don't panic, folks. This decline is not the end of the story. In fact, it may well be the opening of a door.

The first explanation lies in what happened last Friday—known in U.S. markets as “triple witching day.” It is the moment when stock options, index options, and futures all expire at once, prompting a surge of settlements and hedging activity. Last Friday, the sheer volume of crypto-related contracts was extraordinary. Many rushed to cash out—as if at the closing bell of a casino table in Las Vegas, everyone suddenly tried to turn in their chips at once. The result was a wave of selling pressure.

The second factor lies in the continued maneuvers of the U.S. Treasury and major institutions. Smart capital is not leaving the market; it is waiting patiently for lower entry points. The logic is straightforward: with rate cuts already delivered, why not take advantage of the prevailing pessimism to secure a more attractive bottom?

Think of it like an NBA game. True stars do not exhaust themselves in the first quarter. They conserve their strength and deliver decisive blows in the third and fourth, when the outcome is on the line.

The third factor comes from the mirror of history. If we examine the data, a pattern emerges: after each round of Federal Reserve rate cuts, Bitcoin and Ethereum have often seen a brief pullback. Markets, after all, tend to price in good news well in advance. Once that news materializes, it can become an occasion for arbitrage. Short-term declines are the natural by-product of profit-taking. But history also shows us that, within the month following a rate cut, markets have more often than not turned upward in a sustained rally.

Today's “Black Monday” is not a catastrophe. It is a chance to reset the deck.

This so-called “black storm” has left us entirely untouched.

Did BTC & ETH dip alongside equities? Of course they did. But what matters is not the event itself—it is how you respond to it. If, before Monday, you had already transferred your BTC & ETH into your trading account and converted them into the stablecoin USDC, then you executed a remarkably effective move. You settled at higher prices, and today's decline not only spared you any loss—it created an additional advantage.

Currency surfing is not the same as traditional investing. It is not like planting an apple tree and waiting three to five years for it to bear fruit. It is closer to a surfboard on the beaches of Hawaii—its value lies in immediacy. What we pursue are short-term gains and rapid cash returns, not passive waiting. Today's downturn, for us, carries almost no impact. Our strategies are built around immediacy: enter quickly, exit quickly.

This logic is the essence of wealth thinking. Market volatility is not an enemy—it is a partner. With the right tools and preparation in place, what others call a "Black Monday" can, in truth, become your "Golden Monday."

Today, I want to underscore one essential point: becoming a true winner requires more than chasing short-term gains.

A currency surfer must cultivate an advanced mindset. What does that entail?—tiered services, personalized strategies, and premium support.

In this era, one-size-fits-all solutions simply do not suffice. Different members, different capital scales, demand distinct approaches—much like bespoke tailoring. Only a tailored suit truly fits. Our Quantitative Winners Legion is built on this principle: you receive strategies, signals, and investment pacing that are uniquely yours.

But there is a deeper concept at play here—the shareholder mindset.

Joining us is not merely about accessing a short-term trading signal. It is about seeing yourself as a partner, shifting your focus from “how much can I earn today” to “how much value can we create together over time.”

As Warren Buffett noted at the Berkshire Hathaway annual meeting, we do not merely hold stocks; we truly own the businesses themselves. When you join the Quantitative Winners Legion, you are not simply a trader—you are collaborating with our Quantitative Think Tank Center to build future-leading brands, enhance valuation, and participate in the upside of the FGT token. This is not a fleeting game. It is a long-term co-creation of wealth.

James Simons, the King of Quantitative Trading, once said:
"Price movements do not follow a random. Yet they are sufficiently close to random that extracting any incremental advantage is neither easy nor obvious—thank God. God may not care. Thank everyone. Past performance is the best predictor of success."

Acumeta was born precisely within this intellectual framework. Quantitative trading is the precursor to AI-driven trading, yet the future of AI trading lies in fully managed, forward-looking superintelligent agents.

The marvel of human technological progress lies in its subtlety: it often exerts profound power before we fully recognize it—and by the time we do, we are left with only the least optimal version to choose from. Consider, for instance, how often, in daily life, we settle for the most ordinary model of a high-tech product, even when far more capable options exist.

What principle does this illustrate?

Once a technology becomes widely adopted, differentiation disappears. If you still seek distinction, you must pay a premium—either in cost or effort—to secure access or usage rights.

Therefore, by being among the earliest adopters of a technology, you gain the most authoritative and cost-effective conditions for use—just as you now hold Acumeta. In the future, when it becomes mainstream, accessing its highest-tier capabilities may come at a significantly higher price.

Scarcity and value inevitably drive up cost. The Acumeta you choose today is positioned to become the most competitive tool for wealth creation tomorrow. By riding the first wave of opportunity, you secure choice and the privilege of enjoying the best version.

Thus, in any wealth-building endeavor, being among the first is essential—it is the key factor in achieving sustainable success.

How does one become part of the first wave of wealth creation with Acumeta, and at the same time continue to be among those who reap the greatest rewards?

At first glance, this question seems simple—but in reality, it demands decisive action.

Looking back, our Acumeta invitation for participants to engage in the training of currency surfing trading was precisely for those early adopters—the first to launch into wealth-creation opportunities. Were you among them?

I am confident that the vast majority of my current members experienced this first-hand. They engaged with the currency surfing experience as pioneers, and in doing so, accessed authentic winning strategies over recent periods. From the nonfarm payroll wealth wave to the monumental gains following rate cuts, we achieved tangible results—and positioned ourselves to advance toward a more far-reaching future.

Of course, after tasting this initial success, it is equally crucial to continue as a founder in the creation and transmission of wealth for the future. The question remains: how does one achieve this?

Let us consider the most expensive stock in U.S. history: $BRK.A, the share of Berkshire Hathaway.

At present, a single share trades for $730,000. Indeed, one share could buy a modest apartment in Manhattan, or a luxury supercar.

The possibilities that one share represents are remarkable.

Berkshire Hathaway Class A shares—this is virtually synonymous with value investing in the financial world. The history of its share price is, in fact, a vivid reflection of Warren Buffett's investment philosophy.

When Buffett took control in 1965, the stock traded at roughly $19 per share. At that time, the company had not yet grown into the commercial empire it is today.

Why did Berkshire Hathaway Class A become “legendary”?

Through extensive study and observation, I have identified two key reasons:

1. Shareholder loyalty and trust:
2. A no-split stock policy:

Berkshire's shareholders trusted Buffett's leadership and strategy. As Buffett often notes, he prefers to deal only with investors who intend to hold Berkshire stock for the long term, rather than those seeking short-term gains.

How should one understand the legendary story of Berkshire Hathaway Class A, shaped by its shareholder culture?

Each year, Berkshire holds its annual shareholder meeting in Omaha, Nebraska—a gathering that has been playfully dubbed “the Woodstock of capitalism."

Thousands of investors, members of the media, and luminaries from the financial world come together to hear the wisdom of Warren Buffett and his longtime partner, Charlie Munger.

This meeting is far more than a routine corporate financial report; it is a celebration of financial education. Through this forum, Buffett continually conveys his investment philosophy and insights into the markets.

The format of the shareholder meeting not only strengthens shareholder loyalty but also provides a broader audience with a deep understanding of Berkshire's culture and strategic vision.

Ownership of Berkshire, whether through Class A or Class B shares, grants shareholders the right to attend the meeting. Each shareholder may bring a certain number of family members or friends—an exclusive honor that reflects the unique prestige of shareholder culture in the United States.

Over the past week, Tesla's stock has surged, once again capturing global attention. Yet what I wish to highlight is that Tesla's shareholder meeting is far more than a routine corporate gathering—it is a celebration of technology and innovation. With its distinctive cultural atmosphere, disruptive ideas, and forward-looking vision, it has become a focal point for technology enthusiasts and investors worldwide.

Elon Musk, as the driving force behind Tesla, brings a unique personal charisma and exceptional foresight, imbuing the shareholder meeting with unparalleled appeal. Leaders must possess vision—an ability to discern future trends and guide their enterprises toward enduring success.

The brand value and significance of such a shareholder meeting are therefore evident:

&Enhancing brand image

&Strengthening investor confidence

&Attracting talent

&Driving industry advancement

Inspired and shaped by the value of this shareholder culture, my Quantitative Think Tank Center will also embark on an upgrade to offer personalized, bespoke services. At the same time, it will integrate the shareholder culture that has long been embedded in my own philosophy, using this shared cultural foundation to build a new era of brilliance in quantitative strategy.

The establishment of the Quantitative Winners Legion is about celebrating each extraordinary you.

After all, the FGT token of my Quantitative Think Tank Center is also fixed and limited in quantity—it will not be split into additional shares. Offered to all of our members and expanding across North America, and even globally, its scarcity becomes evident, and naturally, its value rises. This mirrors Buffett's principle of not splitting his shares.

The key is to cultivate a future-oriented shareholder culture, attracting members who share a long-term vision and a commitment to co-creating value. Through this cultural transmission, they will enjoy sustained efficiency in returns.

Will you look forward to the miracles our shareholder culture can create? My old friends.

What advantages can cultivating a shareholder culture bring for you and for us?

First, the value of shareholder culture shapes our brand image and reinforces long-term partnerships. This, in turn, attracts more institutional capital to invest in the FGT token over the long haul, generating sustained growth. The prospect of a tenfold or twentyfold increase in token value is not mere rhetoric—it reflects enduring, committed relationships among winners.

Second, shareholder culture enhances our brand influence, drawing in members who consistently engage with high-end quantitative services and capture profit opportunities. This amplifies our reputation and attracts new members—a key driver for securing even greater success in the future.

Third, shareholder culture enables the creation of compelling quantitative strategy success stories and the expansion of innovative investor education concepts. Through this shared culture, more individuals can access the latest innovations and developments in my Acumeta services.

Today, the Quantitative Winners Legion officially opens for participation. Spaces are limited—secure your place now.

Everything has returned to its proper course. The crypto market remain open, and once again the trumpet of trading sounds.

I hope the weekend afforded you the time to reflect carefully on our special invitation. It is more than a document. It is our commitment to the future, a wealth blueprint crafted specifically for you, an entry pass to the Quantitative Winners' Legion.

As you read it, your heart must have stirred with both excitement and hesitation. You have been thinking, weighing, making one of the most consequential decisions of your life.

When you choose any tier of the [Quantitative Winners Legion], you are securing a key position in the growth of your future wealth.

Our Quantitative Winners Legion is designed to provide you with different “positions.” Each tier represents a unique “position,” a unique “strategy,” and a unique “opportunity.”

Each tier corresponds to unique privileges and represents your future path to wealth.

Explorer: You will gain access to foundational quantitative strategies, like a “treasure map” You'll receive a grant of [FGT tokens], like the very first key to your “treasure hunt.” Your customized Acumeta signals are your adventurer's gear, helping you adapt to the market's ups and downs.

Quantitative pioneer: You will gain cutting-edge strategies, like a wealth “navigation system.” You'll receive even more [FGT tokens], like extra keys to your “treasure.” Your customized Acumeta signals will be at the highest level, guiding you to the right direction in every corner of the market.

Strategy master: You will gain advanced strategies, like an “intelligent compass.” You'll be granted more [FGT tokens], like a growing collection of “treasure” keys. With more customized Acumeta signals, you can pinpoint opportunities with greater precision.

Empire architect: You will gain the highest-level services, becoming a *” true wealth creator.” * You'll receive the maximum grant of [FGT tokens], like claiming the entire “treasure” itself. Your customized Acumeta signals will be unlimited, giving you full control over your wealth anytime, anywhere.

Dear Individualized Winners,

Allow me to change the way I address you. When I think about your support and recognition along the way, it gives us yet another reason to pursue the great dream of wealth;

As we step into the next important stage of Acumeta's Winner Services, you must firmly seize the unprecedented value of the winning signals it brings. Every action we take is part of an agreement with you—one that is meant to be joyful and inspiring—turning your path to victory into reality, not just a slogan.

I know that while some paid plans will continue to be introduced in the future, our priority is to win results first. Only then will we talk about how payments are structured, because every validation and experience rests on long-term planning. Achieving mutual success is our shared pursuit.

Pals! This moment is already precious enough, and I hope what you gain is not just confidence, but the realization of the higher quality of life you were meant to have—starting right now; the recognition of the family wealth status you deserve—securing it in the best possible place;

After all, in the endlessly brilliant journey of life, every missed dream deserves a chance at a comeback, just like the brightest star across the night sky, streaking across your world and lighting up your world with dazzling colors!

This afternoon, we'll continue to explore new ways to win! Until then!

Our newly crowned Quantitative Winners

Good afternoon! A wave of wealth driven by surprise rate cuts is now unfolding—a trading opportunity that comes perhaps once in a century. Looking back at historical data, the crypto paradise has time and again created legendary stories of wealth. Yet, sadly, most people only witness such moments in retrospective charts, while only a few truly take part and reap fruits of victory far beyond expectation.

FinLogic

To all members of our Quantitative Think Tank Center, hear this: from this week through the end of 2025, will you let your early stage of currency surfing deliver a doubled return on your overall account—or even multiples more?

If your answer is yes, then welcome back to the quantitative strategy program and join us in active dialogue. A new miracle of wealth is being born…

Well, what you have just heard is indeed the new personalized plan of the Quantitative Winners Legion: to double the entirety of your account funds, or even achieve multiple levels of doubling.

How should such a transformation be understood?

You must recognize this: suppose the total capital for a currency surfing trade is 100k, and each trade position is set at 10%, which means 10 x 10% = 10k,

If each trade were fortunate enough to generate 10k in profit, that would represent a 100% doubling of the currency surfing trade.

It would therefore require ten successful trades in total to realize 100k in profit.

That is how you can make your entire account grow by a full doubling.

But such a scenario presupposes a 100% success rate of Acumeta signals—something which, as proven in actual trading, cannot be achieved in the current environment.

That is precisely why we are introducing personalized custom services, to upgrade you to senior membership and deliver trading signals aligned with your specific capital tier. The frequency of these signals will determine how many trades you can complete in a given week.

Suppose we take the case of 100k, if there are only 3 trading opportunities in a week, then it may take you 3 to 4 weeks to complete the required sequence of signals. But if even one trade goes wrong, the entire plan to double your full account balance will fall through.

Therefore, we cannot depend on a handful of fortunate trades to secure results.

So what should we do instead?

The right choice is to pursue a higher frequency of trades, longer-term planning objectives, and more reasonable, secure position sizing.

For example, when you choose the 500k-level upgraded membership, you may gain not only more frequent trading opportunities each week—say, 10 trades.

That means 40 trades in a month, and 120 trades in a quarter.

In other words, over a single quarter you would have 120 opportunities to achieve success with Acumeta.

It is, of course, impossible to achieve a 100% win rate, but even at a 90% win rate, you would still achieve 108 successful trades.

And according to Acumeta's parameters for the 500k-level trading capital—identifying signals with the advantages of larger capital and higher trading frequency—the resulting position sizes may also expand. Thus, securing 108 profitable trades would not merely yield a 100% return on the account. It would exceed a 500% return—because it is realized over a longer time horizon and through larger capital deployment!

This will be a day to remember—an unprecedented moment of excitement. After waiting through the weekend, and in our commitment to guiding every member on the path to becoming a true long-term winner, we have refined and optimized the service details—solely to join you in a historic wealth-creating endeavor.*
By reading the special invitation, we set forth these important contents. But first, let us briefly revisit the forward-looking rationale behind Monday's crypto decline.
The 25 bp rate cut last week was an expected cut, not a surprise!
Thus, while the cut itself was fact, the market sentiment priced it in as "good news already spent." We saw the same market reaction following the September 2024 rate cut;
Therefore, today's decline in Bitcoin and Ethereum was not caused by any systemic negative factors. On the contrary, I view it as a signal that we are entering the new chapter of victory for the Quantitative Winners Legion!

From the perspective of time, we must upgrade to membership in the Quantitative Winners Legion under Acumeta's personalized customization service.

Today, we present to every member an exclusive customized service plan—the [Quantitative Winners Legion]. In this detailed planning document, you will find every element needed to meet your requirements.*

Because it is impossible for all members to achieve specific profit targets from a single trading signal, the frequency of trading signals becomes a decisive factor. By subscribing to the personalized Quantitative Winners Legion service, your trading positions will be matched with differentiated signal frequencies, allowing you to capture profits according to your lvl of trading capital.

Viewed through the lens of time, if you wish to secure substantial profits during the rate-cut profit cycle, you must gain access to more Acumeta's signal services. For example:

At the initial membership stage, you received a uniform signal frequency, but now, you are eligible for customized frequencies.

Suppose in the past 2 weeks your total trading capital was 50k. The non-specific trading signals you received were not tailored to your capital position, creating a mismatch of risk compared to a 500k position—leading to potentially uncertain profit outcomes.

Therefore, if your trading capital is 50k, your signal frequency cannot be the same as that of a 500k account. Do you see the logic of such personalized customization?

Why does the Quantitative Winners Legion tailor its services by assigning different trading frequencies to different capital positions? Let's say your trading position is 100k, and you receive 3 signals per week. In this case, Acumeta can apply targeted parameters to generate signals tailored to the 100k level. Such position settings are more favorable for managing currency surfing at that capital size. Even if unexpected volatility occurs, they allow for more effective protection of the position, ensuring that risk management and monitoring remain within reasonable limits.

By the same logic, services at the 500k and 3,000,000 levels are also upgraded in a more targeted manner;

This is the foundation of safe trading, and a necessary choice for protective, customized trading. All members who select the same capital tier will enjoy the same trading frequency and entitlements. This enables everyone to execute currency surfing signals in sync and to enhance profits more efficiently.

Now, suppose your trading account holds 5 million. As a member at that level, your customized Quantitative Winners Legion service may correspond to the "Empire Architect" – Shareholder Membership' tier.

At this level, the frequency of your currency surfing signals is unlimited!

From the perspective of our service commitment, we believe that larger trading positions should capture greater profits. After all, the guarantee provisions of our personalized service program are structured as a compensated plan. Thus, for shareholder-level members, greater profits and higher returns not only benefit you, but also enhance the overall performance of our Quantitative Think Tank Center.

Accordingly, under Acumeta's customized service conditions, some members may receive 10 signals per week, while others enjoy unlimited signals. It all depends on your choice, your decision, and the amount of capital you commit!

Therefore, for different choices, we must establish more detailed and standardized frameworks.

At this moment, you are invited to contact my assistant directly to obtain a customized service plan tailored specifically for you.

When you complete your deposit and reach the funding tier you selected within the Quantitative Winners Legion, you will also receive additional support in the form of our token grants;

How should we understand the significance of this important initiative?

Token FGT serves as the value representation of our Quantitative Think Tank Center. We have always been committed to building the token into a vehicle of global financing value, while at the same time striving to grow the Think Tank Center itself into an institution valued at more than USD 3 billion. Based on this trajectory, the future price of the token is projected to rise to at least 6 USDC, representing an increase of over 300%;

From this perspective, by becoming a member of the Quantitative Winners Legion, we want you to share in the future dividends of the Think Tank's growth and join us in building genuine long-term value. The long-term value of the token grants lies in gradually establishing with you a solid foundation as a true winner.

What we grant is the future; what we gain is trust. What you choose is a long-term partnership; what you receive is the opportunity to multiply your family's wealth!

Understanding future wealth appreciation from different perspectives of Acumeta's trading signals:

First, we must recognize that a trading signal represents an opportunity. When you choose a lower membership tier, you naturally gain access to fewer opportunities.

The reason lies in the structural conditions set by Acumeta and in the level of resources our Quantitative Think Tank allocates to paid services. It is simply not feasible to equate the service commitment provided to a 3 million－level shareholder member with that given to a 30k－level member.

In everyday life, we feel this difference clearly. For example, when we fly with United Airlines, we may all be on the same flight, yet the experience in the business lounge and the economy waiting area is entirely different. This difference in experience arises from the different levels of service investment tied to the passenger's payment.

This illustrates a simple truth, if we wish to secure greater returns and profits, we must prepare greater investment capital—rather than attempting to access benefits that fall outside our rightful scope of entitlement.

The question is, do you want better service?

#The advantages of being a Quantitative Winners Legion member lie in maximizing profit potential through large-capital trading.

FinLogic

1. Large capital provides stronger resistance to risk.

2. Large capital allows for more effective execution of key trading actions such as adding to positions, reducing holdings, or pursuing follow-up trades.

3. Large capital offers greater resilience in absorbing losses from market reversals.

4. Large capital makes it possible to capture substantial profit opportunities in major market moves.

5. Large capital supports steady and sustainable accumulation through rolling trades over the long term.

6. Large capital enhances the credibility and recognition of the Quantitative Think Tank Center's strategy services and investment capabilities among institutions.

As you review the personalized standards, you will notice that larger amounts of capital are granted higher trading frequency. This fact itself demonstrates both the advantages and the necessity of large-capital trading.

You should also understand that gaining access to greater benefits is what enables you to achieve your wealth objectives more effectively.

The necessity of the paid service plan for upgrading to Quantitative

Winners Legion membership:

&It enables our Quantitative Think Tank Center to achieve sustained, positive profit growth, attract a greater allocation of high-quality resources, and fulfill the core demand for personalized, exclusive services;

&It improves the efficiency of cost allocation, attracts more top talent, and allows us to build a strong pool of skilled professionals—expanding our elite analysis team;

&It allows Quantitative Winners Legion members to access valuable rights-based services that extend beyond trading support, including advanced tax and accounting advisory, premium health insurance, and exclusive high-end travel opportunities.

&It supports the appreciation of token FGT, since the most reliable measure of our valuation is the rising token price. Having already successfully broken through the 2 U mark, the token reflects the achievements of the past quarter's efforts—making the outlook for the coming quarter even more promising.

&It helps Acumeta secure additional funding for maintenance, optimization, and upgrades, accelerate its path to listing, and make it possible for every Quantitative Winners Legion member to personally experience the intelligent copy-trading custody service.

Of course, all paid service plans are implemented only after your target profit has been secured. In other words, no actual payment takes place before your wealth appreciation goals are achieved—you are simply affirming this commitment in the agreement. After reaching your target returns, will you elect to proceed with the paid plan?

Trading signal frequency is the rhythm of wealth itself!

We cannot expect every Quantitative Winners Legion member to choose the 3 million - level shareholder tier, but we must provide options that meet the full range of membership standards.

The question is: have you found the customized upgrade option within the Quantitative Winners Legion that best suits you today? Whether you are starting with 100k, upgrading at the 500k level, or directly stepping into the unlimited potential of the multi-million shareholder tiers—today, this Monday, is your day to personalize your path to wealth.

As volatility and price spreads in the crypto market expand, Acumeta's customized currency-surfing trading signals are set to launch a new week of compounding profits for winners.

If you have not yet upgraded to the Quantitative Winners Legion, you will lose the opportunity to access the essential services;

If you have not yet upgraded to the Quantitative Winners Legion, you will lose access to Acumeta's future trading signals;

If you have not yet upgraded to the Quantitative Winners Legion, you will miss out on the great profit waves of the rate-cut cycle;

Desire without action means nothing—once you miss this week's chance to join the benefits of the Quantitative Winners Legion, you will have forfeited not only the profit opportunities of Q4 2025, but potentially the winning opportunities of the next 3 to 5 years.

Warren Buffett is regarded as a living legend in the world of investing, and many believe he is the most successful investor in history.

Over the course of his decades-long career as CEO, he has created countless classic success stories. Yet the "Oracle of Omaha" is not all-knowing—he too has made his share of mistakes.

Buffett has always faced his mistakes head-on, reporting them clearly to his shareholders and taking full responsibility himself .

More importantly, by studying Buffett's mistakes and listening to his own explanations, investors can often learn even more than from his many success stories.

Making the wrong investment is a mistake, but failing to make the right investment is just the same.

&Buffett has often regretted not acquiring the Dallas－Fort Worth NBC television station in 1972 for $35 million. By 2006, the station's pre-tax profit was $73 million, and it was valued at $800 million.

&&At the 2016 shareholders' meeting, during the Q&A session, Buffett admitted he once had the opportunity to buy Amazon stock and confessed: “I was simply too foolish not to see the reality. At the time, I never imagined Bezos could achieve success on this scale.”

&&Buffett also had the chance to add Google stock to his portfolio, another missed opportunity he later regretted.

At the 2017 Berkshire shareholders' meeting, he told investors that years earlier, through Berkshire's wholly owned subsidiary Geico, he could have purchased Google stock at $10 per share, but ultimately missed the chance with what would become a tech giant.

He made it clear he was still working hard to learn—after all, he was already effectively a customer of Google's advertising business.

*The lesson: Opportunities come once and do not return. Never allow yourself to overlook investment opportunities that are right in front of you. Don't wait until one day, when you look back, to realize that while you were enjoying Acumeta's services, you missed the personalized wealth-wave investment of the Quantitative Winners

FinLogic
Legion.*